SOUTH PARIS, Me., June 25 — Between her father and her sweetheart, Barbara Carroll made her choice today. She chose her father.

She said Paul Dwyer lies in his new statement that former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll was the real slayer of Dr. James G. Littlefield. She said:

BARBARA CARROLL

"My father is innocent."

And she added:

"I know."

Central figure of the tragic triangle encompassing Maine's "tour-of-death" murders, the dark-haired girl of 17 added a new, deft touch of drama to the case that reached a bizarre climax yesterday with indictment of her father charged with the crime for which her sweetheart was sentenced to life imprisonment after he had made four confessions.

She had a choice to make between a father accused of mistreating her and a youth who—if his fifth and latest story is true—sacrificed his freedom by confessing a

Jap Slaps New Wife of Massie

SHANGHAI, June 25 (AP)—The second diplomatic action, within four days, over the reported slapping of a United States citizen by a Japanese sentry was registered with representatives of the Tokyo government today.

United States Consul Louis H. Gourley, at Tsingtao, Shantung province, reported to the State Department that a sentry struck the wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, the naval officer who figured in the famous Honolulu "Massie" case of 1932.

Mrs. Massie was returning to Tsingtao after having visited her husband aboard the U. S. gunboat Tulsa, according to reports reaching here, and landed at a Japanese-controlled pier. She was escorted by two sailors.

Challenged by the sentry, she failed to reply, it was said, as she did not understand the Japanese language.

The sentry then slapped her on the face.

The only explanation of the action reaching here was that the sentry had mistaken her for a Russian.

(Mrs. Massie is the former Florence Storms of Chewelah, Wash. She was married in March, 1937, to Lieut. Massie, who in 1934 was divorced from Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie. He and three others were tried in 1932 for the killing of the Hawaiian Kahahawai, who, it was charged, attacked Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie. He was convicted of manslaughter and the sentence was commuted to one hour.)

Wednesday United States Consul John M. Allison at Nanking protested that J. C. Thompson of Brunswick, N. J., had been slapped by a sentry.

Britain to Pay, Get New Loan

By WILLIAM HILLMAN

LONDON, June 25—In order to remove as soon as possible the handicap of the Johnson Act, the British government, it was learned today, is considering beginning repayment of the defaulted war debt to the United States at the first opportunity.

The British contemplate such resumption of payments even before a final settlement is reached as to the ultimate sum to be liquidated.

Since negotiati... for a final revision would take some time, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon favor beginning debt repayments in the near future.

The Johnson act forbids nations in default on debts to the United States to float loans or credits in America.

Following are the recent steps taken to reveal the British government's intentions regarding the war debts:

1—Experts have begun working out possible sums and methods of repayment.

2—Chamberlain informed Ambassador Kennedy of Britain's intentions and asked for President Roosevelt's reaction.

3—Chamberlain ordered a preliminary secret canvass of the leading members of the Parliament to ascertain what support he can obtain for debt repayment.

ENJOYING SNACK—Mrs. Patrick Finn and Son Robert, 4, enjoy picnic during the 18th annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, at Northampton. Encampment attracted large throng of Veterans, and their families.

Hearst Policy For Youth Urged

NORTHAMPTON, June 25—Adoption of a long-advocated Hearst policy of training youngsters in patriotism and devotion to country rather than the subversive doctrines of Communism and Fascism is being undertaken by the 18th annual encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The veterans plan to outline a program of youthful education, which they will present at the national V. F. W. encampment at Columbus, Ohio, next month.

Leaders of the organization are convinced that the only way to fight the subversive influences, which have been sweeping the country, is by teaching American youth the true American ideals.

RED MENACE

Brigadier General Bernard W. Kearney, past commander of the V. F. W., declared the Communist menace in this country has become so serious that it is time the veterans realised the only way to combat them is by using the Communists' own methods.

"We have been content, thus far, with organizing fife and drum corps among students," Kearney said. This is not enough. Go into the schools and churches and develop their minds there. Cut out some of the radical theories that are being taught."

He said the new program is based on the tenet of a well known religious society, which he declares has correctly asserted:

"Give me a youth until he is 12 and I don't care what you do with him after that."

"We must face the fact that Communism is here to stay," he said. "Even congressmen are being looked upon with suspicion because of addresses which have not been American in tone."

State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley, visiting the encampment, was high in his praise of the educational movement being adopted by the veterans.

In an address to the group, Buckley said:

"The teaching of respect for government and constituted law and authority must be coupled with the aim of every real American to defeat Communism and other isms in this country."

FIFI D'ORSAY
Warns All Wives

ST. LOUIS, June 25 (AP)—Husbands need special attention at least every two months, in the opinion of Actress Fifi D'Orsay, who today blamed a longer period of separation for an announced plan to divorce Actor Morgan Hill in Reno next October.

"They get used to being without you, just as they get used to being with you," explained the vivacious French star, here to appear in the Municipal Opera's production of "Roberta."

"I left Maurice—that's his real first name—for fourteen months on this tour, and he got used to being without me. I want to tell wives never to leave their husbands for more than two months at a time. They'll lose their men if they do."

The red-haired Fifi exhibited a picture of Hill, whom she said was a former University of Wisconsin football star, once "voted the handsomest man in the Conference."

They were married in December, 1933. She said he was her first husband.

Ex-Mayor Peters Still Gravely Ill

The condition of former Mayor Andrew J. Peters, critically ill of pneumonia at Faulkner Hospital, was reported "unchanged" today. He was admitted to the hospital on Tuesday.

LONDON, June 25 (INS) — Countess Barbara Von Haugwitz-Reventlow's current dispute with her Danish nobleman husband is the climax of a series of controversies, which have continued for more than a year, International News Service revealed today.

The romance of the American-born heiresss to the Woolworth millions and Count Kurt von Haugwitz-Reventlow first struck a reef in the early part of last year.

FALLING OUT

Friends of the former Barbara Hutton and the count described this first episode not as a mere lovers' quarrel, but as a real "falling out."

They said it was followed by a series of lesser rifts until the present controversy, which originated in a difference of opinion on the future education of the countess' two-year-old son, Lance.

Though these major and lesser quarrels all were patched up until the current one began(it was learned that the relations between the couple were never the same.

And so today, while there is little apparent chance of a permanent reconciliation between them, the Countess is now reported feeling in a better frame of mind than she has at any time since the present dispute flashed.

NOT SO BAD

International News Service learned that she told one friend this morning not to worry about her, adding:

"Things are not as bad as they seem."

Reports that she is preparing to leave England, possibly for the United States with her baby son, are strongly doubted by persons in the best position to know.

Back Seat for Dionnes

Sextuplets' Birth Told

NEW YORK, June 25 (INS)—Insistence of a publicity-shy father that the event remain a secret is all that kept the Bushnell sextuplets from being the sensation of the century—there seems to be no other explanation for the fact that no record exists of the startling multiple birth that was brought to light by Robert Ripley, the "Believe It or Not" man.

Ripley revealed that, contrary to belief that the Dionne quintuplets are the largest family born alive at one time in North America, six lusty babies were born on September 8, 1866, to Mrs. Jennie Bushnell, wife of J. F. Bushnell, of Chicago.

The doctor who attended Mrs. Bushnell at the sextuplets' birth apparently respected the family's wishes for secrecy and did not make any report to the medical journals about the astounding delivery. But he did fill out a birth certificate. Now yellowed and faded, it reads:

"CHICAGO, Sept. 15, 1866. This is to certify that Mrs. Jennie A. Bushnell, wife of J. F. Bushnell, in the city of Chicago on the eighth day of September, 1866, gave birth to six living children, three boys and three girls."

SEPARATED 25 YEARS

The complete story of the Bushnell sextuplets' birth has been pieced together from the stories of Mrs. Alinca Parker of Silver Lake, N. Y., and Alberto Bushnell of Albion, N. Y., two of the three survivors of the sextuplets.

Separated for nearly twenty-five years, the aged brother and sister were united here when they arrived to take part in Ripley's broadcast next Tuesday. The third survivor is Mrs. Alice Hughes of Flagstaff, Ariz.

"The family never let on to us that we were sextuplets," Mrs. Parker recalled. "There were only four of us children, because, it turned out later, two of the original six babies died when they were only eight months old."

The revelation of the sextuplet nativity came on Mrs. Bushnell's deathbed. The children then were 15 years old. Mrs. Bushnell called the children to her one-by-one, kissed them farewell and told them the story of their births.

Mrs. Parker revealed that she and her brothers and sisters weighed only about one and one-half pounds each at birth. She says her mother first bore triplets, then the sextuplets, triplets again and finally quintuplets. However, all of the other babies died at birth or soon after.

Biddle's Daughter Wed

DURHAM, N. C., June 25 (INS)—Mary Duke Biddle, 18-year-old daughter of Anthony Drexel Biddle of Philadelphia, ambassador to Poland, and Mrs. Mary Duke Biddle of New York, was married here to Dr. Josiah Charles Trent, 23, University of Pennsylvania graduate.

The wedding followed a romance which began haphazardly enough in a campus stroll at Duke University some years ago when Trent was a student at Duke, and Miss Biddle was a kid on a "tour of inspection."

Mary is a grand-niece of James B. Duke, whose tobacco millions transformed little Trinity College into great Duke University. Trent, who is the son of a widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Trent, of Okmulgee, Okla., was appointed to escort Mary, then in her teens, over the Duke campus on the occasion of her first visit there.

The ceremony, which came as a surprise to friends of the couple, was quietly performed by the Rev. H. E. Myers of Duke University. Immediately following the wedding, the bride and groom left for a honeymoon in Europe.

FORMER DEPUTY SHERIFF FRANCIS M. CARROLL pleaded not guilty to indictment in Maine charging murder of Dr. James G. Littlefield, for whose death Paul Dywer is serving life sentence.

Carroll Fights For Delay, Venue Change

SOUTH PARIS, Me., June 25 — Former Attorney-General Clyde Chapman said he would ask for a change of venue and a delay in the trial of former Deputy Sheriff Francis M. Carroll on a charge of murder. The trial is scheduled to take place July 12.

The thin-lipped, square jawed, former deputy sheriff lost his first skirmish with the law when Justice William H. Fisher refused to appoint Chapman and Edward J. Beauchamp, Democratic nominee for district attorney, as counsel for Carroll, stating that Beauchamp had solicited the case.

Justice Fisher declared the action of Beauchamp was "unethical and unprofessional."

He told the former deputy he might retain the two lawyers of his own volition or request some other attorney to be appointed by the state.

BOTH TO OFFER AID

Carroll announced to the court that he would pay the attorneys' fees, although he was supposedly without funds. Both attorneys declared they would offer their services to Carroll without thought of recompense.

Following the spectacular indictment, Special Assistant Attorney General Ralph Ingalls revealed the motives alleged by the state in the slaying of Dr. James G. Littlefield.

Said Ingalls:

"The state contends that Paul N. Dwyer, 18, possessed letters detrimental to the future of Francis M. Carroll. They were letters written by one of his minor children so reflecting upon Carroll that their possession by young Dwyer menaced Carroll.

"Then, when this information passed into the hands of Dr. Littlefield, a respected, solid citizen, a motive for murder was established. The meeting of Dr. Littlefield, Carroll and Dwyer in the Dwyer home on Paris Hill on October 13 resulted in the death of Dr. Littlefield. But the state contends that Carroll, and not Dwyer, killed the elderly physician."

DWYER OVERJOYED

Dwyer was overjoyed when told by Warden John Welch at state prison of the indictment of Carroll. Dwyer, who was working in the tailor shop at Thomaston Prison, smiled broadly and said:

"I had hoped it would happen, but I wasn't sure because the deputy sheriff had so much influence. It looks now as though I will certainly get justice."

Mrs. Carroll, wife of the deputy sheriff, was bitter toward the pale faced youth who once wooed her daughter. She scored him for what she termed "false accusations."

Sheriff Fernando F. Francis, whose investigation resulted in reopening the case and the subsequent indictment of Carroll, declared he was glad the investigation had ended.

"It was not a pleasant task to conduct an investigation involving one of my most trusted former employes," Sheriff Francis said, "but I was sure in my mind that young Dwyer was not telling the truth.

Dwyer told Warden Welch his reason for not implicating Carroll sooner was because he was afraid Carroll would kill him.

Carroll worked on the case from its beginning and held several conferences with Dwyer following his capture. It is Dwyer's claim that the deputy threatened his life.

Young G. O. P. Opens Parley In Conn.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 25 (INS) — Headed by Congressman Bruce Barton of New York, the eighth New England conference of Young Republicans opened a two-day session here today with more than 2000 delegates present.

Barton will recount a business man's impressions of his first congressional term at a dinner tonight.

Lewis E. Goodsell, a member of the Connecticut delegation, opened the convention while A. Alleton Clarke, of the Rhode Island contingent, took over the duties of permanent chairman.

A resolution, adopted unanimously by the Fairfield county Young Republican League, calling for a "party purge," was expected to come before the resolutions committee session.

murder he did not commit in order to protect her reputation. She had this choice to make and in an exclusive interview with the Boston Evening American, speaking for the first time since reopening of the case, she said:

"Yes, I know all about the story Paul Dwyer has told to the authorities.

"I don't believe him when he says my father killed Dr. and Mrs. Littlefield." (Carroll was indicted only for the murder of the doctor, the charge to which Dwyer pleaded guilty.)

'FATHER NO MURDERER'

The motive alleged by the state as basis of the indictment against Carroll is Dr. Littlefield's knowledge of a story Barbara allegedly told Dwyer, in writing, regarding her father's maltreatment of her. This phase of the case the girl would not discuss today. She said:

"I won't talk about any other part of the story. I know my father is innocent of the murders.

"When I first heard the story Dwyer was going to tell about my father I couldn't believe he would do it. I couldn't imagine how he could think up such a tale.

"I can't talk about what was said between us at the prison. (She referred to a meeting between her and Dwyer during the state's preparation of the case against her father). And I cannot talk much about the case except to say that it will be proven my father is not a murderer."

HER LOVE HAS DIED

Barbara no longer has any love, she said, for the prep school youth whose love for her in adolescent stage he now maintains—fostered a sacrifice that has no parallel in either the cold records of jurisprudence or the flaming passages of romantic fiction. Her love for Dwyer, in the face of this claim she does not believe, is dead. She went on:

"It is true that I was once in love with him when we were in high school. He was a nice boy then and we were happy when we were in each other's company.

"The impression has been around South Paris that I am still in love with him. Well, I am not, and I have not been in love with him for many months. We stopped going together long before those murders were committed, and he knows that.

"Our romance was one just like any two high school kids in the same classroom will become involved in and like most of the others our romance faded before either of us was out of school.

WILL FIGHT FOR FATHER

"When we left school we didn't see each other as often as we did when we were in school together, so we gradually got away from each other.

"When my father goes to trial I will be at his side doing everything to clear him of the murder charge.

"I won't talk about any letter or what was contained in any letter I am supposed to have written. (The State claims to hold as evidence a letter Barbara is alleged to have written to Dwyer in which she mentioned her father's mistreatment of her.)

"I know, though, Paul's story involving my father in the murders is not true."

WIFE BACKS CARROLL

Mrs. Ruby Carroll, 36, wife of the newly accused, joined her daughter in defense of the former deputy. She said:

"I feel just the same as Barbara does about my husband's innocence and I know he will be cleared of the charge that he killed Dr. Littlefield.

"I didn't go into the room in State Prison when Barbara and Paul are supposed to have talked together about this case a few weeks ago. I don't know whether they saw each other or not.

"I will say I have no intention of leaving South Paris because I know when this case is over my husband will be revealed as innocent."

'Death Tour' Love Notes

'Kiss Me, Kiss Me!'---Babs to Buddie

Impassioned love letters, signed "Babs" and "Barbie," were allegedly found in the possession of 18-year-old Paul N. Dwyer at the time of his arrest last October for the slaying of Dr. and Mrs. James G. Littlefield of South Paris, Me.

The text of some of these letters, as given out by police, was as follows:

"Buddie from Barbie:

"Hi-ya, darling, here's how I feel about you—hot potatoes and gingersnaps; wahoo, kiss me quick, fickle. Come up and see me sometime.

"Do you still love me? I've just got my studying done. Ain't that somepin? I love you, funnyface, even if you don't love me. So you'd spend an afternoon with another woman, would you, and leave me all alone?"

(In another letter, in more serious vein.)

"Dear Little Hubby: I've just read one of the sweetest, purest notes that any darling could write to anyone.

"You know I love you (more than is good for little girls). I don't think what I have let you do is supposed to be done.

'Twas Lovely Being Married by Trees

"I know you haven't done as much as most girls and boys usually do when they love each other as much as we love each other. I'm not sorry for it.

"It was lovely, and I'm glad.

"If it wasn't for my love for you and my believing you love me, it never would have been done.

"It was wonderful being married by the trees and everything Sunday afternoon. It made me want to cry, because of my being so happy.

"I love you, love you, love you.

"Some day not very far off, we will live in each other's arms and you will work for me and I for you. I'll plan for it, sweetheart, so, if you ever leave, please come back. Everlasting love, your wife."

On the outside of this note was written:

"To the sweetest, dearest and most lovely of anything in the world, to Buddy from Barbie."

Another letter:

"Dearest Buddy: You are an awfully darling. I love you with everything that I have. You are wonderfully nice and everything that anyone could be.

'Sweetest Husband' From Wife-to-Be

"I don't know what made me write a letter like that, but I was crying when I wrote it and I wanted you like everything. Every single thing that I do (that's right) I do for you. And I try to be what you want me to be.

"I shall always love you. Even after I've left this dear little world. Completely, all of me that's possible. (Now).

"Barbie to the sweetest little husband in the world from his wife-to-be."

Another letter:

"Dearest Paul: I've got to write to you. I feel just in the mood. I meant everything I said this afternoon and I shall always stay just like I am now for you. Always.

"And I am perfectly sure that you love me as much and not more than I love you . . .

"You know I am awfully happy. My studies are O. K., my mother and father love me and the best of all you love me and I've got some one to love . . .

"Please love me always and don't forget that you said you would come back to me some day if anything ever happened. Much love, your Barbie."

Another letter:

"Buddie: To the dearest and most lovely of anything in the world. Love, love, honey, is what I have for you. Seven X's meaning kisses for every day in the week, every week in the month, every month in the year and every year I'm able to kiss you."

Another letter from "Babs":

"My dearest little darling: You know that I shall always love you, no matter where you are or what you are doing.

'Others Won't Mean Anything to Me'

"If you love me as much as you say you do, you won't drink nor 'make' any one.

"I'm glad I belong to you. Your own Babs.

"P. S. I may go out with other kids, but they won't mean anything to me, ever."

Another letter:

"To Paulie Dwyer, anywhere, Buddie, from your Babs.

"Take a little time, Paul, reading this, and try to see my points of view. First, the reasons why I can't go with you.

"Pride—I told everyone I was going single this winter.

"And the wishes of my parents—if you loved me you wouldn't speak of me in anything but a respectful way.

"Second—your faults; you have not enough backbone to stay away from drink. You've not enough in you to stick to anything. You couldn't support a wife and children.

"You are too sure of yourself. You think you could make love to me (you probably could, but ——). You say things you really don't mean to my girl friends and others for a joke.

'I Love to Hug And Kiss You'

"That makes me the sucker, because I believe you when you apologize.

"Your good points: 1. Very entertaining. 2. Cute in your own way. 3. Built very nicely. 4. Humorous. 5. Nice dancer. 6. Dress nice. 7. Wonderful in your way of loving me. 8. Good ranks in school, but I wish you would go out for more sports.

"My ideas of you: 1. You are very nice. 2. I like to be seen with you. 3. I like to dance with you.

"4—I think a lot of your dimples. 5—I love to hug and kiss you. You are so very little. 6—I love to receives notes from you, especially at basketball games. It makes me go through with what I have started."

N. Y. Solon Held On Bribe Charge

NEW YORK, June 25 (INS)—State Assemblyman Edward S. Moran of Brooklyn, prominent lawyer and for more than 12 years one of New York's most active legislators, was arrested and held in $10,000 bail on a charge of accepting $36,000 in bribes.

He was taken into custody in the office of one of District-Attorney Dewey's assistants, who announced the indictment contains six counts, four for alleged felonies, and two for extortion, all growing out of Manhattan's $1,000,000 taxi racket under investigation the last two years.

Moran, himself the writer of the strengthened bribery laws under which he is accused, was specifically charged with taking $16,000 from the Terminal System, Inc., and $20,000 from the Parmalee Transportation Co., Inc.

Fear Break, Shift Dalhover

SOUTH BEND, Ind., June 25 (INS)—James Dalhover, last of the notorious Al Brady gangsters, has been transferred from the St. Joseph County Jail here to the heavily guarded new federal detention farm at Milan, Mich., it was disclosed today.

Officials declined to comment on reasons for the move, but it was reliably reported that fear of an attempted break by Dalhover, now under a death sentence was responsible.

Dalhover, "Trigger Man" for the Brady outlaws, was convicted of the murder of Paul Minnehan, Indiana state policeman. He was captured and slightly wounded last October at Bangor, Me., in a G-man trap in which his companion, Al Brady and Clarence Lee Shaffer, were killed.

Thieves Gets $240 In 2 Store Breaks

Thieves obtained total loot of $240 early today in two Cambridge store breaks, in one of which strong-arm men carried off a 500-pound safe.

Jacob Mann, manager of the Clinton Market, Huron avenue, reported that the heavy safe, containing $200, was carried away.

Thieves also obtained $15 worth of cigarettes and $25 in other merchandise at a chain store on Kirkland street by breaking through a cellar wall.

Lindy Boom!

Paris Excited

PARIS, June 25 (INS)—The newspaper Paris Midi entered the American political lists with a resounding bang today.

On page one, the paper splashed a speculative article on the possibility of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh running for President of the United States.

His probable opponent, according Paris Midi, would be Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York.

Roosevelt Stakes His Prestige on Fall Vote

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt's declaration of a right to indicate his "preference" in Democratic primaries virtually wagered his personal prestige today upon the outcome of 1938 voting.

And his open appeal for popular support—"I need all the help I can get," were the words—dispelled any doubt there may have been that Mr. Roosevelt and the political principles identified with him would be at the forefront of congressional campaign issues.

Unmistakably, the President marked for political extinction if his personal opposition might achieve it, Democratic primary candidates adjudged foes of the 1936 Roosevelt platform. Less definitely, he indicated party lines would be crossed in behalf of a "liberal" triumph on election day.

Unanswered for the present was the extent to which Mr. Roosevelt might go in applying to specific candidacies his standard for personal intervention:

"A clear-cut issue between candidates for a Democratic nomination involving these principles (1936 platform) or involving a clear misuse of my name."

COURT ISSUE

This much clarification was added: Presumably referring to his unsuccessful effort to reorganize the Supreme Court, the President said he would not indicate a "preference" in a state primary "merely because a candidate, otherwise liberal in outlook, had conscientiously differed with me on any single issue."

Further elaboration should not be long in coming. In less than two weeks the Chief Executive will be on the road, travelling through such states as Kentucky, where Senate Leader Barkley fights for renomination; Oklahoma, where Senator Thomas, an administration supporter, faces opposition, and possibly through South Carolina, where Senator Smith, a frequent White House critic, is in the midst of primary campaigning.

VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

In tone, as well as in the words broadcast from the White House last night, Mr. Roosevelt gave friend and foe notice that his would be a vigorous leadership in the months just ahead, regardless of what might be the result on election day.

Mr. Roosevelt emphasized that he was not, as President, asking the voters to elect Democrats. When he spoke of participating in Democratic primaries he said it was "as head of the Democratic party"; when he spoke of the November elections he mentioned "liberal candidates" and named no party.

Policy Foe Copperhead To Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt tagged opponents of his policies with another name—"copperheads."

As he did when he applied the word "Tories" to his critics, he turned to history for the appellation he used in his prepared address last night. He said "copperheads" were carrying on a "concerted campaign" to defeat reform.

"It was the copperheads," he explained, who, in the days of the war between the states, tried their best to make Lincoln and his Congress give up the fight, let the nation remain split in two and return to peace—peace at any price."

Highlights of 'Chat'

WASHINGTON, June 24 (INS)—Highlights of President Roosevelt's address follow:

Wage-Hour Law

"Without question it starts us toward a better standard of living and increased purchasing power to buy the products of farm and factory."

Judicial Reforms

"—A lost battle which won a way . . . in one way or another during the sessions of this Congress, the ends—the real objectives—sought in (the Supreme Court) message, have been substantially attained. The attitude of the Supreme court toward constitutional questions is entirely changed."

Business

"We hope that in the future private enterprise—capital and labor alike—will co-operate more intelligently together and in greater co-operation with their own government than they have in the past . . . certainly at this stage there should be a united stand on the part of both of them to resist wage cuts which would further reduce purchasing power."

Labor

"Some labor leaders goaded by decades of oppression of labor made the mistake of going too far. They were not wise in using methods which frightened many well-wishing people."

Depression

"It makes no difference to me whether you call it a recession or a depression . . . This year, 1938, while it is too early to do more than give an estimate, we hope that the national income will not fall below sixty billion dollars."

Politics

"As head of the democracy party, I feel that I have every right to speak in those few instances where there may be a clear issue between candidates for a Democratic nomination involving these principles, or involving a clear misuse of my own name."

Liberty

"I am concerned about the attitude of a candidate or his sponsors with respect to the rights of American citizens to assemble peacefully and to express publicly their views, and opinions on important social and economic issues . . . the American people will not be deceived by anyone who attempts to suppress individual liberty under the pretense of patriotism."

Farley Says P. O. Budget Balanced

FALMOUTH, June 25—Postal receipts for the current fiscal year are "holding their own" and the postal budget of the nation is balanced, Postmaster General James A. Farley said here today.

Due in Boston later to address Young Democrats of New England at Columbus Stadium, South Boston, Farley stopped off at Providence, R. I., where he was greeted by Postmaster Peter F. Tague of Boston and other notables.

He then came on to Falmouth Heights, where he spoke before 500 Massachusetts members of the National Association of Postmasters.

"We are prone to speak of the objective of a balanced government budget as a consummation devoutly to be wished," the postmaster-general said.

"Well, the postal balance of our country is balanced, notwithstanding the salaries paid to postal employes now are greater than at any time in the past.

"That is to say, eliminating from our postal appropriations the non-postal items, which are not properly chargeable to postal costs, we find that the postal service has been operating at a profit during the last four years, with the exception of the fiscal year 1936.

"There would have been a surplus that year, except that the cost of the 40-hour week was absorbed all at once."

Dr. Hyde Installed As Eire President

DUBLIN, June 25 (INS)—With colorful ceremony, Dr. Douglas Hyde, statesman and authority on Irish folklore, was formally installed as first president of the new State of Eire today. Dr. Hyde received the applause of thousands as he drove through beflagged and crowded streets for the inauguration.

Spain in Threat To Bomb Italian, German Cities

reported to have pointed out the sweeping consequences of possible abandonment of the government's non-retaliation policy with severe reprisals against insurgent centers and "more distant objectives."

Unofficially, there was speculation here as to whether "more distant objectives" mean merely Italian-dominated towns in the Balearic or could be taken to apply to Italian and German cities or warships which the government command might suspect of co-operating with insurgent bombing planes.

Barcelona, for the present, promised co-operation with a neutral commission to investigate aerial attacks in Spain. The embassy said its home government intended to ask the commission to proceed immediately to the scene of any civilian bombardment after it has started functioning.

Britain Told of Spain Reprisal Bombing Plan

LONDON, June 25 (AP)—The Spanish embassy today declined to confirm or deny reports that the Barcelona government had hinted to Britain and France her bombers might make reprisals against Italian cities.

In usually well-informed quarters, however, it was said that Spanish Ambassador Pablo de Azcarate y Florez indicated to Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax yesterday that the targets for such reprisals might be points from which Insurgent bombers were coming.

(Many of these attacks on east coast cities have come from the Insurgent-controlled Island of Mallorca where the Italians have an air base. Mallorca is 150 miles east of the Spanish coast.)

Government Spain repeatedly has accused Italy and Germany of conducting raids on Spanish Government towns and ports.

100,000 Battle For Spain Road

HENDAYE, France, June 25 (AP)—More than 100,000 government and insurgent troops today were fighting one of the deadliest battles of the almost two-year-old Spanish civil war.

The battle, for control of the Teruel-Mediterranean highway, extended along a 15-mile front with its center at Sarrion, 22 miles southeast of Teruel. It was increasing in intensity hourly.

Another insurgent spearhead was thrusting toward Valencia south of Onda, 12 miles inland from the Mediterranean.

Sixty thousand government militiamen were estimated to be defending the Teruel highway against 40,000 insurgents.

The insurgents reported slight advances south of the highway, but seemed unable to take advantage of their gains.

Hurley Relief Measure Dead

Governor Hurley's program to provide relief through a bond issue for highway and building projects today stood killed by a 21 to 11 vote in the Massachusetts Senate.

The measure, which called for a $2,500,000 construction bond issue, expenditure of $7,000,000 of gasoline tax money and transfer of $4,000,000 of highway funds, had been passed in the House earlier in the day.

It met quick defeat, however, in the Republican dominated Senate and brought a charge by Democrats that their Republican colleagues were not interested in the welfare of the state's unemployed.

Hurley already has declared he will not allow the Legislature to prorogue until some provision has been made for unemployment projects.

New Hamilton Rap at F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, June 25 (AP)—Chairman John Hamilton of the Republican National Committee said in a statement today that a federal agent who agreed to sell stories on a spy ring investigation was "only following the example set by President Roosevelt."

Leon G. Turrou resigned from the Federal Bureau of Investigation after leading the spy hunt in New York and contracted to write a series of newspaper articles.

The government began court action to block publication of the series, contending it would interfere with prosecution of the espionage band. Mr. Roosevelt concurred in the view that the articles should not be published.

"Aside from the grand jury aspects of the case," Hamilton's statement said, "I see no difference whatever between it and the sale by the President of commentaries on his public papers and messages."

4 Men Slashed In South End

Four men were slashed today by two Negroes, who ran wild in Washington street, South End, and started to use razors on their victims without warning.

Roy Vadeney, 28, of Dorchester avenue, South Boston, was first to be gashed.

At City Hospital, where he is under treatment for deep cuts in the left hand and side, he told police the pair attacked him at Washington and Mott streets.

Thomas Mahoney of Washington street suffered a cut in the right arm when he ran to help drive off Vadeney's assailants.

A minute later, the Negroes slashed two other men without warning at Washington and West Newton streets. George Gustave, 27, of Washington street, and Louis Stevens, 32, of Genesee street sustained gashes on the chest and arm.

Weeks May Testify

Former Chairman Sinclair Weeks of the Republican state committee and other Republican officials instrumental in the election campaign of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in 1936 will be called upon to testify in the trial of John J. (Mustache) Sullivan when it resumes Monday in Middlesex criminal court.

Sullivan, who is being tried on a charge of illegally soliciting funds for the Republican party during the 1936 campaign, created a furore yesterday when he requested that Senator Lodge be summoned as a witness.

New Discoveries Seen as Aids to N. E. Industries

WOODSTOCK, Vt., June 25—New industries based on discoveries of the present chemical age may regain for New England its place in the sun, according to opinions expressed today at the 51st quarterly meeting of the New England Council in session here.

Nathaniel M. Mitchell, president of Barnes Textile Association, Inc., said New England is the logical center for the manufacture of both filament and staple rayon for a world market.

He pointed out that wood pulp suitable for manufacture of rayon comes from a New England state.

Mitchell further said New England was in the lead in the number of well-trained mill operatives and its climate was more conducive to greater employe energy, with less fatigue, than any other section of the United States.

"New England's problem," he declared, "does not necessarily involve the thought that it must either antagonize other sections or feel that other sections are fighting New England.

"The most important objective is to keep progressive by taking full benefit of all its advantages."

In similar vein Dr. Gustavus J. Esselen, Boston industrial chemist, said the New England pulp industry need not fear southern competition.

"There seems to be every reason," said Dr. Esselen, "why the wood pulp industry in New England should continue at least on its present scale, and some of the newer developments in cellulose chemistry seem to offer an opportunity for healthy growth."

Shots Fired In Auto Chase

The historic battleground of Lexington early today formed the background for a 70-mile-an-hour chase by police after an automobile driver who was captured later in Arlington and charged with drunken driving.

The man arrested gave the name of Francis J. MacDonald, 35, of Thomas street, Belmont. He allegedly led the chase from Lexington into Arlington, where he was cornered on Dundee road, a blind end street, after two shots were fired.

Fear Death Of McCormick

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., June 25 (AP) — The bluff Sandia mountains, frowning down upon the Rio Grande valley, hid today the fate of John Medill McCormick, feared the victim of a fall from one of their precipitous peaks.

Searchers, who resumed their tragic task at dawn, expected only the worst—that they would find the mangled body of the Chicago publishing heir, much as last night they came upon that of his mountain-climbing companion, 20-year-old Richard Whitmer of Aubuquerque.

Personally commanding the three-day search, Governor Clyde Tingley expressed the thoughts of the armmy of men he led into the Sandias today:

"That boy—his body is in there somewhere, and we'll find him—we'll find him."

MOTHER WAITS IN VAIN

Racked by anxiety, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms waited last night in Juan Tabo CCC camp, at the base of the mountains, hoping to learn that her 21-year-old son still lived.

She heard only that young Whitmer's body, skull crushed, almost denuded, had been found at the base of "The Shield," sheer rock face of North Sandia peak.

Of John Mebill McCormick, there was no word.

The plan of today's search, Governor Tingley said, is to surround the base of the peak, then work up and down, in the hope of finding young McCormick, or his body, on a ledge near where that of his companion came to rest.

LIKE CONCRETE WALL

"It will be hard going," said the governor. "The peak is as straight up and down as a concrete wall."

The mountain climber's urge for new conquests led to the tragic venture, friends revealed today.

The youths had climbed steep South Sandia peak, and the even more rigorous slopes of "The Needle," nearby. Wednesday morning they set out to try the face of North Sandia.

SON LOST — Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, noted stateswoman, was in doubt concerning fate of her son, Medill, today, with no trace of youth found in New Mexico. Hundreds were carrying on search.

International News Photograph Service

FATE IN DOUBT — Medill McCormick, 21, heir to Chicago publishing fortune, was still missing today in New Mexico, on mountain climbing trip. His companion, Richard Whitmer, 20, was found dead in mountains.

Lynn Man Held In Girl Attack

Responding to the screams of a woman in a secluded Lynn parking lot early this morning, Patrolmen Clarence Chapman and William Crowe found Marie Manning, 31, lying in the parking lot, her face bleeding, and a man in a car about to drive away.

Chapman started for the car and the operator, according to the officers, attempted to run him down. He leaped to the side of the machine and forced the operator to halt.

Taken to Metropolitan police headquarters in Revere, the man, who said he was John E. Armitage of Fayette street, Lynn, was booked on charges of drunkenness, driving so as to endanger, operating under the influence of liquor and assault and battery.

Judge Powers' Death Mourned

MORRISVILLE, Vt., June 25—Leaders of the bar and state today mourned the passing of George M. Powers, 77, chief justice of the Vermont Supreme Court, who died at his home here after an illness of six weeks.

Judge Powers was appointed to the chief justiceship in 1913 on the death of Judge John W. Rowell of Randolph.

He was born in Hyde Park, Vt., the son of Horace and Caroline Waterman Powers. Graduated from the University of Vermont in 1883, he became clerk of the Vermont House of Representatives the year following and served in that post until 1890. He was admitted to the bar in 1886.

Judge Powers was a Republican, a member of the Universalist faith and a life trustee of the University of Vermont.

Harvard Family Welcomes Yale

By BETTY ALDEN

THE Saltonstalls, of Milton, aristocratic New England family steeped in Harvard tradition, are welcoming a Yale man into their clan this afternoon when Marjorie Saltonstall becomes the bride of Joseph Bragdon, of New York, who graduated from Yale before entering the medical profession . . .

The tall blonde Marjorie, youngest of the Robert Saltonstalls' three daughters, is middle-aisling at Milton's First Parish Church in a gown of white organza with a simple tulle veil and a bouquet of white summer flowers . . . The church is decorated with garden roses, arbor vitae and trailing ferns . . .

Marjorie's attendants are all from the ranks of her sister debs in the '34-'35 season, with the exception of her sister, Mrs. Havold Mack, of Fairfield street, the matron of honor . . . Salmon pink organza, with wreaths of garden flowers in their hair and bouquets of rambler roses fashion the colorful outfits of the bridesmaids, while Mrs. Mack has a similar costume of French blue . . . The two little flower girls are dressed in white organza . . .

In addition to Mrs. Mack, the attendants include Susannah Ayer, Jean Tuckerman, May Bryant, Ruth Brooks, Louise Harding and Mary Constance Matthews . . .

Gordon Haight is best man for Dr. Bragdon and Henry Saltonstall is one of the large corps of ushers . . .

Last minute wedding preparations did not interfere with Marjorie and Joe's enjoyment of the Harvard-Yale races at New London yesterday, for they were both in the front ranks of socialites raising vociferous cheers for both crews . . .

Anne Hutchins and F. Markoe Rivinus, Jr., also an outstanding bridal couple of this final June Saturday, advanced their wedding rehearsal to this morning so they and their twenty-two attendants could join the throng of collegiate enthusiasts on the observation train at New London . . .

With so many young friends in their bridal entourage, Anne and her fiance have been one of the most feted of June bridal couples . . . and their wedding this afternoon culminates a whirl of partying in their honor . . . St. Paul's, in Dedham, is the scene of the ceremony, with a reception at the home of Anne's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Hutchins, in Needham . . .

Anne's bridal gown is of white organdie with a small round collar and rows of ruffles edging the train . . . Her veil of old lace falls over billowy tulle and she is carrying white sweet peas . . . The eleven girls in the bridal procession, five of whom are Boston friends of the bride, are wearing marquisette gowns of three different shades of pink, with coronets of pleated blue velvet ribbon in their hair, and large bouquets of pink and blue delphinium . . .

Local Girls in Big Bridal Party

Mrs. Benjamin Goodale (Mary Dewart) Mary Hutchins, Frances Osgood, Anne Howard and Priscilla Weld are the local girls in Anne's bridal party . . . The others have come on from Long Island, Philadelphia and Washington.

Pink and blue is also the color scheme chosen by Mrs. Hutchins for her very beautiful costume . . . her blue dress enhanced by a pink sash and pink straw hat trimmed with tiny blue feathers and blue veil . . . Mrs. F. Markoe Rivinus, of Radnor, Pa., mother of the bridegroom, is receiving in a gown of blue chiffon and lace, with a gardenia corsage.

After their honeymoon, Anne and Markoe will live in Philadelphia.

Five doctors are taking a prominent part in Ellen De Normandie's wedding today out in Lincoln, for not only is her bridegroom, Dr. Bradford Cannon, a member of the medical profession, but the fathers of both the bride and groom, as well as two of the ushers, are all physicians.

Bridesmaid

One of Many in Anne Hutchins' Procession

ATTENDS BRIDE—Mrs. Benjamin Goodale of Chestnut street, the former Mary Dewart, is one of the eleven attractive girls in the bridal procession preceding Anne Hutchins down the aisle of St. Paul's Church, in Dedham, today, when the latter becomes the bride of F. Markoe Rivinus, Jr. Mrs. Goodale is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. William Dewart of Manchester.

Gov. Murphy's Daughter Weds Dartmouth Man

NASHUA, N. H., June 25—On the 37th anniversary of the marriage of her parents, Eleanor Mae Murphy, youngest daughter of Governor Francis P. Murphy of New Hampshire, became a bride today.

The bridegroom was Donald W. Erion, of Buffalo, N. Y., Dartmouth football captain in 1936.

The ceremony, performed by Bishop John P. Peterson of Manchester, was in St. Patrick's Church here.

500 GUESTS

Guests at the wedding and at the reception that followed included more than 500 persons prominent in the social and political life of New England.

The elaborate setting of the ceremony was in striking contrast to that of the marriage of the present Governor Murphy and his bride, almost four decades ago.

At that time, Governor Murphy was a young man struggling to get his first foothold in the business world, after a boyhood so poverty stricken that a pair of shoes was a luxury often beyond his reach.

Today, however, in the beautiful Murphy home here, the youngest of the Murphy daughters and her bridegroom were centers of a gathering attended by New Hampshire's most distinguished personages.

ANTIQUE TAFFETA

Officiating at the wedding ceremony, Bishop Peterson was assisted by Reverend Cornelius F. Cahill and Reverend Lancelot F. Quinn.

The bride, a tall, attractive blonde, was regal in a full-skirted frock of antique taffeta as she approached the altar on the arm of her father. Her voluminous skirt fell from a tight square-necked bodice and was scrolled with dainty ruchings of white net. Her long veil of bridal illusion fell from a royal coronet of orange blossoms.

The bride's sisters, Mrs. John Bryant of Nashua and Mrs. Edward O'Brien of Worcester, served as matrons of honor. They wore Molyneux gowns of pink marquisette, their hats of natural horsehair were fashioned like halos, tiny clusters of rosebuds and long velvet ribbons trimming them.

The maid of honor, Janet Syme, of Cleveland, O., was gowned in a pastel frock of marquisette. The four bridesmaids, Mrs. Dugald Porter, Sally Hughes, Shirley Colburn and Betty Ohl, wore blue marquiscette and net.

BROTHER BEST MAN

Walter C. Erion was his brother's best man. Heading the usher group was the bride's eldest brother, Walter Murphy.

Others included Francis P. Murphy, Jr., John Bryan, of Nashua, N. H.; Edward O'Brien, of Worcester; George Byer, of Long Island; Dugald Porter, of Cambridge; Thomas Monagan, of Waterbury, Ct.; Russell Hutton, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Shaw Careter, of Pelham, N. Y., and Edward Danahy, of Buffalo.

Following the reception, the bridal couple left for the Adirondacks. On Wednesday of next week they will fly to Bermuda, and on their return will make their home in Buffalo.

Jamaica Plain Couple Wed

Blonde Catherine Hourihan, of Jamaica Plain, lived up to her reputation for individual attire today when she became the bride of Lawrence McHugh, of Jamaica Plain, at a ten o'clock wedding at the Blessed Sacrament Church in Jamaica Plain.

Her bridal dress consisted of numerous layers of tulle, topped by a silver lame jacket. Her tulle veil fell from a coronet fashioned of silver lame. Instead of flowers, she carried a rosary of tiny flowers made of lace, with an orchid in its center.

Her sister, Julia, her only attendant, was also gowned in white tulle. Its skirt was trimmed with daisies, while garden flowers of every variety fell from a tulle-trimmed basket inprovised from a white straw hat. A cartwheel hat of fine white straw completed her ensemble.

A corps of six ushers officiated. Three brothers of the bride, John, William and Joseph Hourihan, headed the group, which also included Abner Sisson, Edward Murphy and William Lee.

A reception and breakfast followed at the Hotel Kenmore, with the bridal couple departing shortly afterwards for a wedding trip to Hollywood, where the groom's brother, Jimmy McHugh, lyricist, has planned many informal gatherings in their honor.

Kay, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hourihan, is a graduate of Forsyth Dental School. Mr. McHugh, a former member of the House of Representatives, was graduated from Boston College and is a member of the Massachusetts bar.

Miss Pierpont In Bridal

One of today's most picturesque weddings takes place at the summer estate of Mr. and Mrs. Harlan T. Pierpont, in West Boylston, when their daughter, Dorothy, becomes the bride of William Waldo Grose, of Great Neck, L. I. Feathery evergreens, flanked by tall white pillars, set in a wooded corner of the estate, form a rustic background for the bride's ivory net and old lace costume.

Her sisters, Mrs. John C. Ewer and Janet Pierpont, together with Joan Grose, Mrs. Charles S. Barton, Mrs. Clifford Coddington, and Elizabeth Dewey, are the attendants. Their gowns, of dotted muslin, some red and some blue, are worn with caps of red and blue and their bouquets combine the same colors.

The bridegroom's father, Waldo Grose, of Great Neck, is attending to the ring and other best man duties, while the ushers include John Ewer, formerly of Boston; Minot Grose, of St. Louis, who married Eleanor Leith of Dedham a year ago; John Grose, prospective husband of Barbara Houston; John Pierpont and several friends from New York and the Midwest.

Miss Mooney Weds Doctor

Margaret Mooney, of Dorchester, chose ivory satin, tulle veil and a prayerbook as her bridal costume when she exchanged wedding vows with Dr. Joseph Dailey, of Dorchester, at nine o'clock this morning in St. Peter's Church, Dorchester.

Her only attendant was her sister, Jeanette, who chose a gown of aquamarine net, her matching veil falling from a cluster of flowers.

Joseph Cousens, of Dorchester, served as best man. Included in the usher corps were Dr. Ralph Dolan, Dr. Benjamin Claffey, Leo Driscoll and Charles Keen, all of Dorchester. A reception followed at the Milton Woman's Club.

Miss Mooney is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Mooney, of Dorchester. Dr. Dailey is a recent graduate of Tufts College and Tufts Medical School.

YOU CAN BE BEAUTIFUL

Cologne Comes Back Wrapped in Kerchief

KAY FRANCIS, Warner Brothers star, epitomizes the smart, and always feminine type. To achieve the glamour for which the Hollywood gals are famous, you must be ever-vigilant about daintiness and subtle fragrance. Arline Gould tells you today of a way to achieve it.

By ARLINE GOULD

Have you forgotten your handkerchief? Yes, you probably have a clean one with you, but have you remembered to make it an aid to your charm? Is it just a clean hanky, or does it carry a haunting fragrance, reminiscent of you?

Ladies in an earlier day knew the value of a softly-scented, dainty handkerchief. They used it for effects, as they did the coquettish fan—and it was very effective.

Our grandmothers could tell us a thing or two, also, about keeping daintily attractive throughout a sweltering day. Even though they did not have to melt in an office, they would not have dreamed of being without cologne.

Cologne has come back, and little cries of surprised joy are heard on all sides. As a bath lotion, an after-shower rub, or a sprayed scent for your room, it is grand.

One of the most modern and illustrious parfumeurs has just brought out a prize package which will give you glamor-insurance even in the dog days.

It is a Kerchief Cologne Trio, consisting of three one-ounce bottles of their favorite odors of eaux de cologne, trickily tied in a hand-blocked handerchief (just to remind you), and topped with a nosegay of spring blossoms.

You spray the cologne liberally on your handkerchief, and you have no idea how refreshing a whiff of it will be when the heat begins to get you down. If you have annointed your skin with it in the morning, your hanky will enhance your fragrance through the day.

A nicer gift for a sweet girl graduate, your week-end hostess or a summer bride cannot be imagined, and the price, considering the name on the distinctive bottles, is very reasonable.

Moreover, you get the kerchief and the blossoms on the house. The attractive trio costs just the value of the cologne, which sells for about a dollar an ounce.

Incidentally, even if it's a long time since you were a graduate, why not give yourself a gift? You couldn't think of a nicer one than this, nor one that you will appreciate more.

I shall be glad to tell you where you can buy this cologne trio if you will call me at Liberty 4000 any day between nine and five, or write me at the Boston Evening American.

Common Errors In Speaking

Everybody stares in amusement at the young fellow who calls the players "ath-a-LETES!"

As for the girl, she vows this is her last date with a man who makes such embarrassing pronunciation blunders.

If he gets tangled in a simple two-syllable word like ATHletes what would he say in talk with her cultured friends.

"No, I haven't read the beeOGraphy of Madame Curie," he'd probably flounder. "But I'm positIVEly going to read it next week. What a treMENdus lot of REEsurch she and her indefaTEEGable husband must have done to discover radium."

"Poor fellow, he means well," they'd say—and try not to embarrass him by using the right pronunciations: buyOGraphy for biography, POSitively, treMENdous, reSURCH for research, indeFATigable.

Speak correctly with the help of our 40-page booklet, Words Most Often Mispronounced. Check a few words each day, use them in your talk until you are sure of them. Cultivate the cultured speech that impresses others in your favor.

Simple Cookery For Hot Days Is Best

By MARTHA LEE

There really is no percentage in milling over a lot of hefty oven dishes these warm summer days. Not when you can serve swift and simple top stove food in half the time and heat.

Why with good management and a pantry full of ready-to-serve foods you can turn out big, substantial suppers for days on end and never even see the inside of your oven.

Take macaroni now. Did you know you could make a big abundant main course dish by merely merging a tinful of Cooked Macaroni with a can of tuna fish and a few crimson slivers of pimiento? You just mix, heat and serve. That's all there is to it.

TOP STOVE SUPPER

2 7-oz. cans tuna fish
6 tablespoons butter
1 cup soft bread crumbs
2 medium (17-oz.) cans Cooked Macaroni
2 canned pimientos, cut in shreds
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Melt two tablespoons of butter in top of double boiler and stir in finely flaked fresh, soft bread crumbs and remove to a dish. Melt remaining four tablespoons butter in same pan, then cook coarsely flaked tuna fish in it until thoroughly heated. Combine fish with macaroni pimientos and Worcestershire sauce. Place pan over lower part of double boiler and heat for 20 minutes. Remove to individual sea shells or serving platter and top with buttered bread crumbs. Serve very hot. Serves six to eight.

COOL COOKKERY

That first torrid night when you feel too lazy to stir up a hot meal for the folks, why don't you compromise with your conscience and serve a sturdy cold supper instead.

It'll be easy to prepare and can be plenty of good, rugged eating in it, if you plan well. The secret is to have a substantial main dish—something like kidney bean salad (a mid-western favorite) with plenty of rib-sticking qualities.

TOMATOES STUFFED WITH KIDNEY BEAN SALAD

1 medium (18 oz.) can baked kidney beans
2 cups celery, chopped
2 tablespoons India Relish
2 to 6 tablespoons mayonnaise
½ teaspoon salt
6 tomatoes

Put kidney beans in strainer and pour boiling water over them. Drain and cool. Then mix with celery, India Relish and salt and moisten with mayonnaise. Let stand in automatic refrigerator until chilled. Skin and cool tomatoes. Cut thin slice from stem end and remove pulp. Sprinkle tomato cups with salt then fill with bean mixture. Replace tops and garnish with watercress. Arrange in nests of crisp lettuce leaves and serve with mayonnaise. (NOTE: Chopped hard cooked eggs may be added to the kidney bean salad mixture and a bit of chopped or grated onion, if desired.)

* * *

Some other time when you want to keep cool as a cucumber and still serve a solid supper, try heating a can of spaghetti—the kind that comes dressed up and ready for action—in a spicy tomato and cheese sauce. Mound this spaghetti in jumbo slices of bologna that have been sauteed in butter and curled up into crisp cups. Top with Parmesan cheese and serve at once attractively garnished.

Here's the method.

SIMPLE SUPPER DISH

Heat 1 large (24½ oz.) can cooked spaghetti. Saute slices of jumpo bologna, cut ¾-inch thick, in butter until it cups. Fill with heated spaghetti and sprinkle with grated Parmesan cheese.

WATCH INGROWING NAILS

Don't fuss with an ingrowing toenail. The more the hardened flesh is dug out, the more it will bank up. After the bath, friction with mineral oil.

Permanent help comes through a change of shoes. Pressure causes ingrowing nails. Give the toes wriggling room and these troubles will never come to you.

Aged Mother's Welfare Deserves Consideration

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My father died when I was a child of four. I'll admit my mother worked very hard to keep a home for us and give us good educations. But I took over the family when I was 18 and kept things going till my two sisters were married, and my brother on his own.

I want to marry now and set up my own domicile. The girl I want to marry is not favorable to have mother live with us. And I am willing to make a down-payment of $200 to have mother admitted to an old lady's home. But she cries whenever I suggest this, and says she has always been independent till she lost her health. But I side with my girl and feel that we ought to go with ourselves.

I admit mother was splendid in the way she looked out for us children and kept our home together. Still youth and age have different problems. A. M. G.

Have you ever considered, my dear sir, that when you're old you will have the problems which age bring? And your children, if you have any, will probably find you and your welfare as much of a burden as you are now finding your mother and her problem.

I think some better solution to your mother's future could be found than putting her in an old lady's home. When I get a letter like yours, I always think of a certain European proverb: "The Lord doesn't pay all his bills on Saturday night."

Good Manners

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Should wedding announcements be sent to guests who have attended or are expected to attend the wedding? No formal invitations are being issued. Should announcements be sent to persons invited by personal note who cannot attend the wedding?

2—Should announcements, Christmas greetings and so forth, be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Billings when the writer knows only one of the couple? E.

1—Marriage announcements are sent only to those relatives and friends who have not been invited to the wedding. This is true whether the invitations were formal or informal, and whether or not the person invited attended the wedding.

2—Yes. Formal invitations or announcements are addressed to Mr. and Mrs. whether or not the person sending them knows both Mr. and Mrs. Such formal details make a social bow to both husband and wife.

Hair Dyeing Beauty Art

HAIR dyeing has become one of the beauty arts. There are specialists who do nothing else.

This business of transforming a gray head to a brown one or a drab head to auburn or chestnut requires skill. The agents used are chemicals—except henna, which is an herb—and chemicals have a way of fighting each other. That is why no woman who has been using one dye should change to another. She may find that she is pouring troubles on her head. Her hair may turn taupe or purple; it may become streaked. If the dye used is satisfactory, she should stick to it faithfully.

Some coloring agents must be applied quickly. That is why the home job isn't always successful. The amateur dyer may not be able to distribute the coloring matter evenly. Anyhow, it is usually a messy chore. The work should be done by a professional.

Let no woman forget that the gray hairs reappear close to the scalp. A touch-up is necessary every six weeks or so.

"Handsome" Pens Marriage Offer

What Has Happened:

Mike Shannon, pretty redheaded magazine counter girl at the Hotel Eureka, is trying to reform one of its spectacular guests Handsome Larry Regan, sensational young southpaw (left hand) pitcher, whose misconduct has been worrying his team's management.

Mike is the chief support of her family. She was not so pleased when "Wish" Malone, the club's No. 1 scout, suggested that she might marry the erratic Handsome. But when he fell again for liquor, she rushed to his room to "bring him to" and a most embarrassing scene ensued.

Later that day at the stadium, when "kidded" about "the redhead," Handsome struck Assistant Coach Harper, but he escaped suspension with a warning.

Now Continue:

CHAPTER SIX

The boys hadn't spared Handsome. They made Harper the big guy in the whole rumpus. The gang in the shower room had seen to that. Mike was in a panic. The story said Handsome had been sent to the front office, that Ace Barnes refused to make any comment.

"It wasn't much of a fight," Handsome told the newspaper men. "I just slapped him a little." The whole thing made excellent reading for the fans. They liked Handsome's fighting spirit. He was popular.

"Oh, oh!" Mike pressed her hands together. She'd tried too hard to help Handsome and she'd only made things worse! The afternoon dragged on. The game was over early. Mike could hardly wait to see Handsome. When he had not come by 6 o'clock, she was desperate.

She felt she must leave for home. But why was he so late? She pictured him starting all over again with last night's spree. She felt everybody in the lobby knew she was stalling, hoping he'd come before she left.

Workers' Aid Needed

By C. OLIVER WELLINGTON, Partner McKinsey, Wellington & Co., Management Engineers.

The present is a very good time for developing a sound program of industrial relations. Unemployment, wages and income, hours of work, working conditions, substandard workers and relations with organized labor, will continue to be the most important problems which management will be called upon to solve.

The objectives of a sound program should include not only the minimizing of labor disputes but also the development of employe efficiency, the increasing of employe satisfaction, and the protection of the physical and mental well-being of employes. The point of view in industrial relations, however, should be business-like rather than paternalistic. Even though it is not possible to isolate the effects of a sound industrial relations program in the cost statement, nevertheless the problem should be approached from the viewpoint of sound economics and good business.

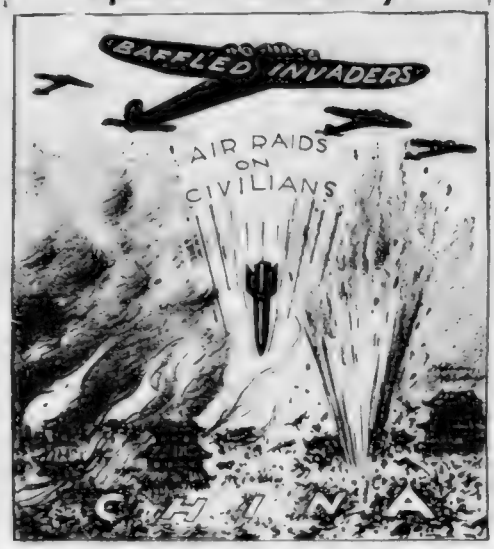
BOSTON AMERICAN
BOSTON, SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1938

Spare Humanity!



"BLESSED ARE THE MERCIFUL FOR THEY SHALL OBTAIN MERCY"

The Editor Says:—The nations of the world MUST be made conscious that the bombing of civilians spells the death of all that is civilized and human.

The last act of the Seventy-Fifth Congress was one of its best.

The Senate passed a resolution condemning the bombing of civilian populations and directed the committee on foreign relations to "investigate the matter and report at the next session of Congress its recommendations as to what action may be taken by Congress tending toward the cessation of the practice."

A solution to this grave problem was proposed by William Randolph Hearst in his editorial in the Hearst newspapers of February 5 wherein he said he advocated a "CONGRESS OF NATIONS TO DRAW UP RIGID RULES FOR THE PROSECUTION OF CIVILIZED WARFARE."

The same powers that stopped the use of the dumdum bullet can stop this frightful massacre of the innocents, the powers of conscience and consciousness of right and wrong in the human mind and heart, the power of reverence for God and God's commandments, the power of human pity for the helpless and of mercy given in the hope of obtaining mercy.

It is the obligation of this civilized and progressive nation to do everything possible without delay or deferment to convene an INTERNATIONAL PARLIAMENT FOR THE HUMANIZATION OF WAR, and to accomplish that beneficient object not only immediately but EFFECTIVELY.

MASSACHUSETTS' EYES turn today to Northampton, where the State Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars, holds its annual convention.

The former soldiers, for a brief few hours, will put aside the cares and responsibilities of life and try to recapture the happy youth that was theirs twenty years ago.

But, as their resolutions attest, they do find time for serious matters—for consideration of such important resolutions as insistence upon payment of war debts owed this country by foreign nations, continued opposition to subversive organizations and constant support for all measures designed to make peace permanent in America.

TEETH IN THE LAWS that prohibit recruiting of American citizens for wars in foreign countries are demanded by Representative McCormack of South Boston.

The Congressman says his action results from the stories of young New Englanders who were induced to fight with the Communist-led forces in Spain by promises of large sums of money.

He cites the Boston Evening American articles written by Captain Irving Halperin, Dorchester young man, who told how Boston Communist agencies lured him and others with propaganda that they would "battle for democracy."

Mr. McCormack deserves praise; the request he makes is not only patriotic, but essential to this country's security.

The Political Parade

By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

WASHINGTON, June 25.

WHISPERING prairie breezes are moaning today through the dry and rattling stalks of bureaucracy's $250,000,000 pipe dream on the Western plains.

In the closing hours of Congress—a fact which has escaped attention—a determined handful of economically-minded Democrats in the House finally put an end to the fantastic scheme to plant an artificial forest 1000 miles long and 100 miles wide, stretching Southward from the Canadian boundary to Mexico.

That is, these Democrats think they have put an end to this Treasury raid, but they're not sure—they have ended it before, only to see it return to life in all its brazen extravagance.

What was disclosed in the aforesaid closing hours of the dying Congress exactly illustrates the persistence, insistence, and resistance of Washington bureaucracy.

The lesson to be derived from it is that if bureaucracy is not chained to death it will strangle the very government itself.

THIS "Shelterbelt" scheme, now acknowledged to be a ghastly failure by every test, has already cost the taxpayers $5,000,000, which has been thrown away.

The dazzling project, one of the New Deal's earlier nightmares for squandering public money on impracticable visions, called for the planting of NO LESS THAN 7000 MILLION TREES.

It was brought out in hearings and debate that the trees wouldn't grow, that they wouldn't produce moisture, that they hadn't affected the climate, and that all they did was to increase the moisture in the soil for about 200 feet from the line of trees.

The House refused to spend another dollar.

But Senator Norris succeeded in inducing the Senate adopt an amendment to the Deficiency Bill appropriating $1,300,000 to carry on this tree-planting. There was a battle over it in conference, but the House stood by its guns, the project was killed, and that's the end of the forest pipe-dream on the Great Plains where nature itself has never been able to make trees grow.

NOW let us see how bureaucracy in Washington really works.

THERE NEVER WAS ONE WORD OF STATUTE LAW AUTHORIZING THIS SCHEME.

It was started with an allocation from relief money. Seven billion trees were to be planted. The cost was to be more than a QUARTER OF A BILLION FOR A STARTER. Completed, it would run into billions.

Two years ago Congress PASSED A LAW directing the bureau in charge to liquidate the whole thing, and appropriating $170,000 to wind it up.

Instead, bureaucracy, drunk with its own sense of power, and grown contemptuous of Congress, permitted the $170,000 to lie untouched in the Treasury.

It then demanded, and got, another relief allotment of $1,500,000, and carried on the tree-planting IN DEFIANCE OF CONGRESS.

If Congress had yielded, and had appropriated even ONE SINGLE DOLLAR that would have been statutory authority to carry on. And we would have had this vast fantastic dream fastened on us forever, at an expense of nobody knows how many billions.

What of Today, Tomorrow?

Women Create Own Types of Recreation

This has been a series of articles on recreation, during which much has been said in reference to adult male recreation—but not much about women and relaxation.

The Boston Evening American's TODAY and TOMORROW feature herewith presents the woman's viewpoint and Miss Frances Pollock, Boston Park Department recreational director, tells us what recreation means to her sex.

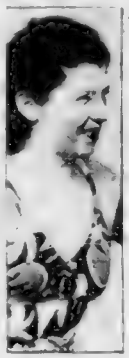
By WILLIAM MICHELFELDER
Boston Evening American Staff Writer

Like her lobster salad, with a special mixture of sauce and ingredients, a woman likes to make her own play—even if she participates in general forms of recreation.

Miss Frances Pollock ought to know. She's had a great deal of experience watching women at play—almost 40,000 of them—and, as a Boston Park Department director, she has discovered that they like to INVENT RECREATION before they use it.

Quoting Miss Pollock, we learn:

"Women, both old and young, have shown surprising response in creating activities which are now part of the full program of the Boston Park Department.



Frances Pollock

"Naturally, a woman leans inevitably toward the lighter arts of singing, dancing, dramatics and such pursuits.

"Woman's place is no longer exclusively in the home if I may indulge in a bromide.

"A few years ago, the Park Department decided to work out a special program for women but we soon learned they had their own ideas about that program.

"THEY ASSERTED THEMSELVES. TODAY THERE ARE MORE THAN 25,000 WOMEN SPENDING THE SUMMER THINKING UP HOW THEY WILL PLAY. I AM NOT EXAGGERATING. YOU WILL INVARIABLY FIND THEM UNDER THE SUPERVISION OF OUR INSTRUCTORS. BUT TELLING THE INSTRUCTORS WHAT THEY LIKE TO DO.

"Women, in our recreational activities, take the bull by the horns. They, of course, are the uncontrollables of recreation, but, once they get under way, the results are more than satisfactory.

"IT IS INTERESTING TO NOTE THAT WOMEN ARE ESSENTIALLY INTERESTED IN CREATING COMPETITIVE SPORTS. ALSO, WOMEN ARE MUCH INTRIGUED BY ANY TYPE OF RECREATION WHICH WILL ENABLE THEM TO DISPLAY SOME KIND OF TALENT.

"THEY MIGHT NOT LIKE A PARTICULAR TYPE OF SPORT, BUT THEY WILL GO INTO IT DETERMINEDLY IF IT MAKES THEM LOOK COMPETENT.

"When a woman attends a Boston playground for the first time, she is shown the atmosphere, the equipment and facilities available, after which, in most cases, she picks out the type of play she prefers and then decides to add her own original slant to it.

"NOW IT IS UNUSUAL, IN MY OPINION, THAT WOMEN AT BOSTON PARK DEPARTMENT PLAYGROUNDS, ARE SPENDING MUCH TIME THIS SUMMER AT SOFT-BALL GAMES.

"WE FIND THAT THIS GAME ATTRACTS WOMEN OF INDUSTRIAL AND TECHNOLOGICAL TENDENCIES.

"Why, I really don't know.

"PERHAPS THIS MIGHT BE THE REASON: AFTER SEVERAL WEEKS OF PRACTICE, MANY OF THE WOMEN'S SOFT BALL TEAMS COME TO GRIPS WITH A MALE TEAM AND, USING REGULATION TYPE OF PLAY, LICK THE FRAZZLE OUT OF THE MEN.

"The bringing together of female personalities in the playground activities is interesting to our department. Among themselves, women will bury competitive spirit and their traditional friction, jealousy, often fades away in inter-playground competition.

"THE OBJECTIVES OF OUR DEPARTMENT IN REFERENCE TO WOMEN ARE TO PROVIDE FUN. BUT, UNLIKE MEN, THEY WANT TO HAVE FUN MADE TO ORDER AND THEY REFUSE TO BE ORGANIZED BY ANY SET OF FORMULAS IN COMPETITIVE SPORTS. I BELIEVE THAT IS INTERESTING FROM THE PSYCHOLOGICAL POINT OF VIEW.

"Today we plan to build up the largest women's recreational program possible. Women today, have more leisure they are interested in using CONSTRUCTIVE TIME to exercise both mind and body. Twenty-five years ago a woman looked at recreation in the form of physical exercise, as though it was something abnormal.

"TODAY, THE MODERN WOMAN REALIZES THAT PHYSICAL EXERCISE IS NECESSARY TO OFF-SET THE HIGH TENSION OF DAILY EXISTENCE. SHE HAS BECOME MORE INDEPENDENT, MORE ALERT TO SURROUNDING CIRCUMSTANCES AND REALIZES SHE MUST MEET MAN ON THE COMPETITIVE BASIS—ALL OF WHICH IS REFLECTED IN HER INCREASED INTEREST IN ORGANIZED RECREATION.

"Originality in play, I believe, is the most outstanding characteristic of women in modern recreation.

"This we shall encourage to the utmost. Our facilities for women are theirs to work with. The more originality they display the better we like it.

"WITH THE COMING OF SHORTER WORKING HOURS, NEW METHODS FOR ADMINISTERING HOME LIFE, THE GREAT REDUCTION OF HOUSEHOLD TASKS, THROUGH SCIENTIFIC APPROACH, I LOOK FORWARD TO A NEW ERA FOR WOMEN IN RECREATION."

(In the Boston Evening American Monday will appear another of this series of articles on recreation in Boston.)

Listen, World!

by Elsie Robinson

THE SHACK stood on the edge of the desert.

Above the rickety shake roof, across the sun-bleached earth, an old "Chinese Locust" poured its cooling shade...one pool of dark blue shadow in one hundred miles of blaze. Plodding home from the mine, eyes blinded by heat, ragged shirt and spiked boots ringed with sweat, I would dive into that coolness - tear open my collar, let it flood my flesh.

Elsie Robinson

Others would come, staggering out of the glare—reaching out their hands to the darkness. We would stand there, not speaking...not thinking.

It saved us—that tree. And often I had tried to raise others from its seeds. They were strange seeds, round and hard as rock, the size of a large pea. But I could not make them sprout. No matter how carefully I tended them, they would not sprout.

Then, one day there was a fire in a pile of rubbish and, after the fire, the year's first meager sprinkling of rain. A week after I passed the spot . . and stood staring. There, thrust in lustily, lay hundreds of sprouting seeds. The fire had cracked them. Once released, life leaped on its way.

I had seen plant life begin in many ways, but never before had I seen it start like that. Born by fire!

ONCE AGAIN, I thought of the strangeness of life...How stupid we are to think that a successful existence should be an easy and pleasant affair. Real life is never pleasant or easy. Growth is always difficult and painful—often dangerous. It takes fire or flood, heart-break, humiliation or loss, to crack us all...to set us all free on a new and wider trail.

"He who would save his life must lose it."

Life isn't static. A normal life never stays put. It is always changing passing through a constant succession of deaths and births. You cannot be something new until something old has died. You cannot go ahead without leaving something behind you. You cannot leap forward without breaking the old shell.

The only completely safe people are dead people.

A growing person is a moving person... a discontented person...a restless, harried, experimental, uncertain and unsafe person. If you find a person who is completely contented with his or her present lot...who desires no change...runs no risks...makes no experiments...you may be sure that you are looking at A PARTLY DEAD PERSON.

Schmeling's Defeat

by Hugh S. Johnson

NEW YORK CITY—Some visions stick in the mind like a midnight landscape suddenly and blindingly revealed by a flash of lightning—to be instantly blotted out in blackness. Yet you recall them more clearly than the same daylight landscape observed for hours.

One minute after the machine-gun rapidity of the Louis-Schmeling shambles began, there was such a flash, etching of that poor Nazi numb against the ropes, eyes bemused daubers down utterly helpless, mentally absent pitifully limp. It lasted a split second but it will stick with me always.

General Johnson

After the last Schmeling-Louis fight Mr. Hitler's propagandists unloaded a lot of silly boasting stuff about its proof of white Aryan supremacy - crediting the victory to a mythical race rather than to a very substantial man.

There is no such thing as an Aryan race. There was a Nordic race of tall, blue-eyed, long-headed savages, like the Vikings, but Mr. Schmeling doesn't belong to it nor do any of Herr Hitler's people. In the ring Schmeling's tanned body was darker than Joe's. His round Mongoloid head was as different from a Nordic's head as Joe's negroid cabeza. Racially, Mr. Hitler's gladiator is something left over on the edge of Europe from the Mongol invasion of Ghengis Khan or the Huns of Attilla.

THE PITEOUS FLASH I got of Schmeling wrecked and out on his feet, was vivid pictorial disproof of this nonsense about Aryan physical supremacy.

The average of white intelligence is above the average of black intelligence probably because the white race is several thousand years further away from jungle savagery. But, for the same reason, the average of white physical equipment is lower.

If the black men had an equal opportunity to compete in athletics there might not be any white champions at all. Certainly there would be fewer on a percentage basis. This is proved in the army whenever sports field and track events are opened to both races on an equal basis—which isn't often.

As officer in charge of athletics in Pershing's punitive expedition, I once conducted an all-sports field day in Mexico. There were three white regiments and two colored ones. As I recall, the Negroes took all events except one second in the 100-yard dash. My enlisted assistant observed—with bad diction, but good sense — "Lieutenant, they're just too d—— physical for us." It was obviously true.

THE BEST PLACE to look for a man to lick Joe Louis is in the black and not the white race. In that Chihuahuan wilderness the Negro troops off duty frequently wore only shorts. There were plenty of bronzed, statuesque bodies, lithe and powerful as Joe's—and that was among less than 1500. No, there is no Aryan supremacy in gladiatorial contest.

It is nothing for us to weep about and seek white hopes. These black boys are Americans—a whole lot more distinctly so than more recently-arrived citizens of, say, the Schmeling type. There should be just as much pride in their progress and prowess under our system as in the triumph of any other American. For all their misfortunes and shortcomings they are our people. Negroes, yet, but OUR Negroes.

The Brighter Side

by Damon Runyon

WE SAT not far from Mr. Bernard Gimbel, the New York-Philadelphia merchant prince, in a restaurant the other evening. He eyed us across a stretch of tables at intervals, but did not seem to be really seeing us. He seemed to be lost in deep thought.

Damon Runyon

We said to ourselves now there is a big business man probably thinking of mighty serious matters. More than likely he is wondering when the upturn is coming. We said to ourself it must be pretty tough to be a big business man in these times and have to be thinking of your problems even over your noisettes of lamb saute nicoise. Then Mr. Gimbel called to us:

"Say," he said, "did you ever get a college degree?"

"No," we replied. "Why?"

"Well," he said, "I have been sitting here thinking how funny you would look in a cap and gown."

We tried to pass it off with a ha-ha that was strictly phoney, because that crack really touched a sore spot. For years we have secretly yearned for a college degree. We have often said to ourself that if ever we get rich the first thing we will do is to buy a college degree. We hear that you can get one from some colleges for no more than the price of a new gymnasium or a football stadium.

To be sure we do not know what we would do with a college degree if we had one. We understand you cannot get a dime on them at McAleenan's loan establishment and it is a cinch you cannot eat them. Just the same we would give anything to be able to write ZYZ after our name in the authority of one of our large colleges.

AT LEAST that was the situation up to the moment of Mr. Gimbel's unfortunate remark. Now we are a little dubious about the matter. We had never before given the slightest thought as to how we might look in a cap and gown. We just sort o' took it for granted that we would look mighty cute.

However, if Mr. Gimbel visualizes us so arrayed as a comic figure, it might be well for us to abandon our ambition for big time collegiate honors and be content with just the degree we hold from the Keeley Institute of Denver, Colorado, though it is just a minor league degree and not to be classed with degrees from Harvard, Yale or Princeton, or even Vassar.

THE EDUCATIONAL system of the K. I. was quite simple. It amounted to just injecting into the students at stated intervals 65 extract of gold watches and chains that destroyed, or at least impaired, a student's knowledge of how to drink spirits frumenti and automatically made him a dud in the matter of knowing how not to drink.

The system was sometimes known as the "Gold Cure." It was quite famous before Prohibition, but we did not hear so much of it during Prohibition. It seems that then nobody was any more interested in learning how not to drink than they are now.

SUNDAY'S PAPER

By ANTHONY MERRILL

YOU WANT to step into a plane in Boston, fly with the sun across our vast country, and step out in Hollywood?

You want to visit the marvelous Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco, behold the wonders of the Twentieth Century, witness things you've hardly dared to dream of ever seeing?

Ann Marsters

Now comes your opportunity - the opportunity of a lifetime. Your opportunity comes with your Boston Sunday Advertiser tomorrow, and Ann Marsters tells you all about it.

Miss Marsters is seeking the TYPICAL NEW ENGLAND GIRL. Such a girl exists, of course. Exists just as typical girls exist in England, France, Italy, and in our own Sunny South and Far West.

And though you've probably never had the courage to tell a soul—YOU may be the very young woman Miss Marsters hopes to find. Typical YOU may be TYPICAL MISS NEW ENGLAND.

AND HERE'S ANOTHER SECRET. Miss Marsters will also select a girl to represent Massachusetts at the big World's Fair in New York.

She'll tell you about that, too—tomorrow in your Sunday Advertiser. Everything you want to know, everything you need to learn for your typical New England Girl or Miss Massachusetts candidacy is in her story. You really cannot afford to miss it.

ARE YOU GOING to acquire a sun tan this summer? Not one of those leathery, unbecoming patches of burn, but a truly beautiful and healthful bronze of a shade suited to your natural coloring?

You would like to, undoubtedly. But how? That's the mystifying question.

Yet after tomorrow it won't be mystifying. Dr. Henry D. Chadwick, State Commissioner of Health, will tell you how. He will give you his opinion and methods, speaking to you as the eminent physician and surgeon that everyone knows him to be.

Also, the Sunday Advertiser will give you 10 sun tan recipes of the rarest beauties of filmdom: Bette Davis, Joan Crawford, Luise Rainer, Marjorie Weaver and Anita Louise.

Bette Davis

It is an article you who hope to enjoy your vacation at the lakeside or seashore should clip and keep.

YOU LIKE SPORTS, surely. And, liking sports, you will not want to miss Jack Conway's extremely interesting story of the facts behind Joe Louis' recent victory.

You will like Dave Wilson's expert discussion of next Wednesday's $50,000 Massachusetts handicap race. If you intend to bet a dollar you will want to know what he thinks.

Miss Marsters, feature writer, also interviews Seabiscuit and War Admiral, rivals for the big purse.

Austen Lake and Joe Cashman competently handle other sports features. You will enjoy them as you always do—in your Sunday Advertiser.

THE GREEN MAGAZINE delighted you last week. It will delight you again tomorrow.

Walt Disney

HERE IS NEWS! You've heard about Walt Disney. WHAT is he, WHO is he?

You'll know tomorrow. Walt tells you himself—all about himself. And for you as a Sunday Advertiser reader, he even draws and autographs a special cartoon!

Of course, you enjoyed Lily Pons' story so aptly titled, "Singing Through Life." She writes another chapter for you tomorrow, proving again that a great singer can also be a great writer.

Dashiell Hammett's novel, "The Girl With the Silver Eyes," continues. This is the important chapter, so don't neglect a line.

FROM BEACON HILL comes the Last Days of the Legislature story, by Alfred D. Whelton, the Sunday Advertiser's political editor. You won't want to miss this.

WAGES AND HOURS! You can imagine no more important topic, especially since the passage of this controversial legislation in Washington.

Tomorrow, because of your certain interest, your Boston Sunday Advertiser will take you behind the scenes, will introduce you to Congressmen Connery and Martin, to a leading industrialist and to workers.

You will learn their views and from them, form a new understanding of how you as a New Englander will be affected.

Cong. Connery

THE AMERICAN WEEKLY brings you a veritable trainload of good reading. What would you do if you were a penniless, illiterate hobo who suddenly found a king's ransom in gold? You'd probably do exactly what Tony Okland, who died the other day, did. Don't pass over this tomorrow.

Did it ever occur to you that some folks really enjoy starving themselves? They do. And the American Weekly is the authority. It's proof is convincing.

Why do some murderers go free while others die on the gallows or in the electric chair? You've asked yourself that question a thousand times, undoubtedly. Therefore you're going to turn immediately to the story about the killer who can't be caught BECAUSE THERE ARE TOO MANY SUSPECTS.

It is a fitting finale to the symphony of information and entertainment that awaits you tomorrow in

YOUR BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER

Goldwyn May Trade Cooper for Power

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor International News Service

HOLLYWOOD, June 25—Just by chance, I overheard an extremely interesting conversation.

Louella O. Parsons

Samuel Goldwyn is arranging to trade Gary Cooper with Dudley Along the Mohawk one of last season's best money for Tyrone Power and a 20 Century Fox vehicle.

Sam it seems would like to get Power for the male lead in "Wuthering Heights" with Merle Oberon. The Emily Bronte story has to go into production as soon as Lady and the Cowboy" is finished and the Power lad who is plenty hot now with "Marie Antoinette" coming up and "In Old Chicago" breaking records is perfect for the part.

Marie Wilson's best stock in trade is her pretense of dumbness but take it from me Marie isn't as gaga as we are led to believe.

Marie landed here a few years ago with several thousand dollars and proceeded to use every bit of it to make a splurge. She bought herself a big shiny car a mink coat and installed her family in an expensive mansion. But before she spent her last nickel she had the foresight to stock up with hundreds of dollars worth of canned goods.

When she was down to her last buck (an I mean) along came a movie job at Warners and saved the family. This incident, embellished will be incorporated in "Broadway Musketeers," Marie's first starring vehicle.

Yes, Marie is now rated for stardom, following Boy Meets Girl. Not only did Marie find a job but romance as well. She will marry Director Nick Grinde this coming year.

Snapshots of Hollywood

Betty Davis entertaining Helen Hayes and the Victoria Regina company at luncheon in Jack Warner's private dining room at the studio a night spot sensation Simone Simon and the Earl of Warwick, Hedy Lamarr and Reginald Gardiner, Letitia Fairbanks with her cousin Doug Jr. following the preview of Algiers, Barbara Hutton stepping out with Jack Dunn and let me say that boy gets around plenty, the Eddie Cantors and Ted Lewis bidding farewell to the jetsetter Alec Templeton at the Cocoanut Grove. The band pianist has made many friends who are sorry to have him end his engagement. Alice Faye and Phil Harris attended a week-end party on the Gene Markey yacht with Tony Martin, Virginia Peine shopping for a swimsuit for her swimming jaunt, the latest and most popular form of exercise. Henry Fonda guest of honor at a dinner George Raft gave him in settlement of a wager on the Swimming Lana fight. That's all for today. See you Monday.

'Hannita' New Jewish Film

"Hannita," a Palestine film, will have its American premiere at the Jeremiah E. Burke High School Center, Grove Hall Roxbury, Wednesday evening, under auspices of the Jewish National Fund Council of Greater Boston.

The film depicts the courageous stand of a group of Jewish pioneers in erecting a new settlement at Hannita, dangerous outpost near the Syrian border of Palestine.

A companion film will be "This Is the Land," another Palestine-made motion picture which tells in simple, moving style the experiences of the Jewish pioneers graphically picturing their work on the soil, the defense against Arabs and the constructive work of rejuvenating the ancient land. A melodic background is furnished with the rendition of Palestine folk songs by the characters.

2000 Children At Safety Show

More than 2000 children are guests of the management of Mattapan's Oriental Theater at today's monster safety show sponsored by the Massachusetts Safety Council and the Registry of Motor Vehicles, in cooperation with the theater.

Safety Council films acquaint the children with the accident hazards they are likely to encounter during the school vacation period as well as talks by safety experts are features of this unusual program.

DR. KINSOLVING SPEAKER

EAST NORTHFIELD, June 25—Dr. Arthur Lee Kinsolving of Baltimore will be among the speakers who will today address the 500 girls gathered here for the 50th Northfield girls' conference.

Fight Films Thrilling

Two minutes and 34 seconds of fighting history is being unreeled on the RKO Boston screen this week and, with all due respect to the excellent program being currently shown on local screens, it is today's most vitally interesting film sequence.

It is, of course, the Louis-Schmeling newsreel. Witnesses of the heavyweight championship fight in New York who have viewed these blow-by-blow pictures in slow motion aver they are more vividly graphic than the fight itself. See them and judge for yourselves. They will be shown for the last time tonight.

Warner Brothers' thrilling prison drama "Over the Wall" and the mirror mystery with a curious background, "Extortion," make up the dual opening on the RKO Boston screen tomorrow.

"Over the Wall" is a tense melodrama of a man falsely imprisoned for murder and his subsequent rise to fame by means of a beautiful singing voice. It stars John Eagan, with June Travis, Dick Lord, Beverly Vesta Ann Berg and Ward Bond.

"Extortion" co-stars Scott Colton and Mary Russell. Supporting players are J. Farrell MacDonald, Dorothy Hall and Arthur Loft.

Wharf Season Opens Monday

The Wharf Theater at Provincetown will open the summer season Monday with the bill of Clare Morrison's play "God Save the King." Raymond Hackett and Kay Strozzi will be co-starred.

William Chambers will play the part left vacant by the death of Eliot Cabot. The cast will also include Muriel Starr, Jane Bancroft, Tina A. Dryden, Margaret Fowler, Alexander Frank, Lionel Dix, Milton Parsons, Jack Gilchrist, Wesmore Lassiter and Kenneth Bartlett.

Rehearsals are under way at the Little Theater under direction of Arthur Hanna. Neil McFee Souther is the Wharf Theater's director.

Capitol Theater Allston Haunt

Favorite haunt of Allston citizens these sticky summer nights is the Capitol Theater, where scientifically washed and cooled air makes movie-going a major pleasure.

Another incentive to making the Capitol a weekly habit is the large free parking space provided patrons of this popular Commonwealth avenue theater.

Bank Clearings Gains Fail To Hold Pace

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW
Financial Editor

The major gains scored a few weeks ago by bank clearings figures have failed to hold and recent totals show that declines under 1937 are again rising. However the emphasis should not be placed on the losses registered so much as on the figures to come in the next week or two.

With scattered signs of improvement and reports of freer buying prevalent bank clearings should provide an excellent measuring rod. If the good things reported are true the figure for New York City in particular should reflect the improvement.

Personally, we will be satisfied if clearings build up an advancing trend from week to week. A year ago business was declining but compared with present levels it was relatively good. Consequently a week to week comparison showing gains should receive more emphasis than a year to year compilation revealing declines.

OFFERINGS APPEAR

The path of the market to higher prices is being made somewhat rougher by the appearance of offerings which, in some instances, are fairly large. Most observers are inclined to the belief such selling will result in a temporary halt in the uptrend. The oversigned subscribes such ideas with the reservation the character of the rise will change following a resumption after a corrective reaction or a sidewise movement.

Up to this time leading issues of the blue chip class have monopolized the limelight and secondary issues with higher future prospects watched their pace. This is accounted for largely by the fact the former were favored with buying. Now with the public almost convinced the thing is real secondary stocks should get the play when prices take to the rallying trail.

STATE STREET NOTEBOOK

In answer to inquiries the writer wants to say the limits given for the averages this week still hold . . . also to note that when the secondary stocks start to move the averages, which do not explain them as a rule, work upward more slowly . . . which confuses some public observers because the tape itself is usually a lively affair.

SEC Chief's Plan Seen As Radical

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University.)

Special to Boston Evening American

NEW YORK, June 25—A Dr. P. Gourrich, who is referred to as "chief economist" of the SEC, is again being heard from. A press dispatch states that a memorandum of his now lies on the President's desk.

When I saw the name, I at once remembered that the other Gourrichs I have known of came from Russia. This one may not be a Communist, but if you will read what follows you will agree that he might as well be.

The gist of Dr Gourrich's scheme is to hasten the steps being taken toward State Socialism. The proposal is to have the government force an expansion of production in basic industries.

The steps which Dr Gourrich proposes, and the assumptions upon which they are based are as follows:

(1) Individual initiative and private enterprise, are a failure; state socialism is the remedy.

(2) The spend-lend program now being tried is but a stop gap, and at most can give but a temporary relief value.

(3) The government must increase production, and do so in the heavy basic industries. It is proposed to force the steel, motor and building materials industries to expand output by one-half.

(4) In order to do this in a way which will arouse least resistance and be the least open from a political standpoint, the existing business mechanism should be used.

(5) Therefore, let the government go through the motions of "underwriting" key industries.

Dr. Gourrich is reported to say that the government can't lose because it will get more taxes, have less expense for relief. I would say that part of the game is to make the manufacturers pay for their own underwriting.

MR. BOSTON

Schmeling's Legs Have Lost Speed } Real Reason for His Downfall

By JACK CONWAY

THE FUNDAMENTAL reason for Max Schmeling's complete collapse before Joe Louis is quite simple to those people who have been around the boxing game. The German's legs are gone as a result of the inroads made by Father Time and 14 years in the fistic wars.

Mr Boston

A fighter is no better than his legs. He needs his legs to carry him into position from which he can attack, but more important to get him away from punches.

A fighter becomes a hollow shell when his legs go on him. In this space on the day of the bout I stated that the first good belt landed by Louis might prove Schmeling was a hollow shell, and that if such were the case the match would be over in a jiffy.

Schmeling didn't think he was a hollow shell when he was training at Speculator, N. Y. He looked physically fit. I asked him at the time did he think he still had power under his tanned skin and dancing muscles. Before Max could answer the question Joe Jacobs, his manager, declared Schmeling was all right in every way.

Even wise old Pete Reilly, the gray fox of the boxing game, felt Schmeling was much younger physically than his years. But he wasn't. The Schmeling who was knocked out in two minutes four seconds by Louis was a man 43 years old in every way.

Schmeling was never very fast, but he had slowed down to a walk in the Louis tent. When the young champion blazed punches at him he stood flat footed and took them flush on the jaw. He made a weak effort at defense by turning his side towards Louis when he was backed against the ropes. That was when he was belted those two solid kidney punches which Max's doctors say knocked a vertebrae of the back out of position.

I don't think even the kidney blows would have had such an effect on a younger Schmeling. One can take such blows when 24 to 28 years of age and fight back, but at 33 they hurt and often cause serious injury.

The Story of Legs in Boxing

JACK DEMPSEY quit boxing because his legs would not hold up any longer. He was fortunate to last the ten blistering rounds against Gene Tunney at Chicago.

Jack Sharkey hit the fistic toboggan when his legs gave way.

"I am all right when I am going forward," Sharkey told me following his bout with Primo Carnera, "but when I start to go back I flounder and find myself in difficulties."

Jimmy Braddock told me the same story the night before the Louis-Schmeling bout.

"If Louis crowds Schmeling and makes him go backwards, he will win quickly," said Braddock. "It will be all over in a few rounds, but if the champion waits and permits Schmeling to set his own pace it may be a different story.

"Old fighters are all right while they are setting their own pace and going forward. Crowd them and make them back up and their legs buckle up on them."

We agreed at the time that Louis could win if he gambled and made a fight out of it if he forced Schmeling to back up, if he hit him anywhere he could and gave his youth an opportunity to win the battle with age.

Louis gambled, and tossed punches in reckless style. He was five times as fast as Schmeling. Joe's young legs enabled him to get to close quarters and there to get the grip on the canvas of the ring that helps in the delivering of a knockout blow.

The position of the feet are almost as important as those of the hands in the proper execution of a knockout punch. When a boxer has his young feet digging into the canvas of the ring, he gets greater drive in his punches.

Legs are vital when at close quarters, and two heavyweights are fighting for the advantage. Young, strong legs enable their fortunate owner to keep in the correct position.

Can Louis Take It?

EVEN WHILE one still could feel the shock of Louis' terrific punches there were ringside fans who were asking whether Joe himself could take it.

I don't believe any fighter can take it if belted hard enough on the right spot.

The reason there are champions is because they usually keep so busy dealing out punishment that they don't have to take much punishment themselves. Louis was the dealer in the big show at the Yankee Stadium, and Schmeling was kept so busy absorbing punches that he didn't have time to deliver any solid smashes.

One Schmeling right hand punch glanced past Louis' jaw.

"I saw the punch coming," said Joe, "and moved my head enough so that I was only hit a glancing blow."

Louis will do his most effective work if he remains an attacking fighter. Any heavyweight who can hit as hard with both hands as the champion does should not stand back and give his opponent an opportunity to take pot shots at his chin.

Louis will remain a destructive ring machine as long as his legs hold out. When they collapse as Schmeling's legs have, he will be just another fighter who can hit, but who cannot get within the proper range.

Sox Could Use Roy Parmelee

Big Hurler Rusticating In A. A.

CLEVELAND June 25 Every day in every way the Red Sox team looks more like a Jimmy Foxx team.

The Clouterman won when Double X is hitting or walking and lose when he is doing neither.

Jimmy was in a hot stick streak starting this trip, and the Sox won six out of seven games in St. Louis and Chicago.

Since Sunday last, however, Jimmy has made but one safety, and the Fenway flock has lost its last four starts three against the Tigers and the opener of the current three-game engagement with the league leading Indians.

The Sox could easily have won the opener here despite the silence of their stick guns. The Indians handed them six runs to take the game, adding them three runs on the platter in the first frame but they rallied.

They came right back to rap the four visitors' tosses for two runs in the second and finally blew a twenty-run lead and the verdict in the seventh.

Archie M. Kain, who had relieved Jim Bagby in the third, suddenly lost his stuff. Two singles and a walk put the Indians on the bases with two out. Then up stepped Hal Trosky to send the sacks wild with a double.

Thus Johnny Humphries staggered to a 7 to 6 win and the Indians increased their lead in the A. L. race to 4½ games over the Back Bay boys who remain in a virtual tie for second.

It was an extremely costly decision for the Sox to toss away. A win might have pepped them up just enough to wallop Bob Feller tomorrow and Johnny Allen tomorrow. Fritz Ostermueller and Lefty Grove oppose them.

It becomes increasingly evident every time they're called upon that the second-string hurlers do not lack what it takes to be winners.

It might help and certainly wouldn't hurt if Roy "Tarzan" Parmelee were brought in from Minneapolis.

Louis May Defend Title In Britain, California

NEW YORK, June 25 (INS)—England this fall and California next spring may be heavyweight champion Joe Louis' itinerary for the immediate future in defense of his title. His opponents, in order, would be Tommy Farr and Max Baer.

Promoter Mike Jacobs took under consideration offers from London and San Francisco for the bouts and announced he would make a decision as soon as all angles involved in a promotion here and elsewhere could be ironed out.

The offer from London reportedly came from a powerful syndicate with Armand Vincent, Canadian promoter, as its spokesman. He offered Louis a $200,000 guarantee to be placed in a New York bank upon the signing of contracts.

Gene Tunney is eastern representative of a group seeking the Louis-Baer match during the world's fair to be held at San Francisco next year, and a delegation conferred with Promoter Jacobs relative to the fight being taken west.

Max Baer

Robert Taylor, the movie actor who is a member of the fair sports committee; Charles Fraunz, police commissioner of San Francisco, and James F. Howell, state fair commissioner, were in the group which talked with Jacobs.

Reportedly they were ready to guarantee $750,000 for the fight, and said they expected it to draw a million with a $50 top price for tickets.

Schmeling Through, He Promises Wife

NEW YORK June 25 (INS)—Max Schmeling has fought his last battle. He promised his wife, Anny Ondra in a transatlantic telephone conversation that he would announce his retirement from the ring when he returns to Germany.

Before he is permitted to go home though Max must square up income tax accounts, totaling about $40,000 with the state of New York and the Federal government.

8	Miss Ruth E.	59	M. J. Gavan	6-1

TRUDY QUILL should have the longest route, rates good enough to give it the call here. MURPHY'S FRIEND is the added threat. SWEET 100 should take third to both.

SECOND RACE—FUTURITY
(Second Half Daily Double)

LIQUID RED, MUTTON BOY, MORNING MUSIC

1	Liquid Red	67	Cedar Pt. Ken	3-1

7	Bob-O-Link	66	E. Rose	8-1
8	Lazy Ben	66	Pat Cooney	8-1

With the red blanket, LIQUID RED should be able to break out and lead the bunch, but the principal source of danger being MUTTON BOY. MORNING MUSIC, winner of its last, might upset.

THIRD RACE—5-16 MILE

TREATY TRAFFIC, CONNIE MACK, SCOTTIE GIRL

7	Miss Di Brindel	55	G. A. R. Kennel	8-1
8	Prologue	60	M. T. Dubois	8-1

TREATY TRAFFIC, the red blanket TREATY TRAFFIC should prove to have the edge. CONNIE MACK has a late burst of speed which makes it dangerous. SCOTTIE GIRL, winner of its last, is a strong contender.

FOURTH RACE—FUTURITY

ALUMNITA, FRISKY GIRL, DORMINO

7	Galloping Gus	58	A. L. Smart	8-1
8	Lazy Pet	58	Fred Parsons	8-1

ALUMNITA seems best of this band of juveniles. FRISKY GIRL the most likely winner. DORMINO should land in the money.

FIFTH RACE—5-16 MILE

The top one runs the rail and with the red blanket should retain it from start to finish. MISS DELLA can better her best, while PAT is conservative in the money.

SIXTH RACE—FUTURITY

FIRST WAY, JACK RED RAN, DUSTY DAN

1	First Way	70	M. J. Gavan	3-1

7	Lilac	55	A. L. Smart	8-1
8	Mattimak Robin	60	C. K. Wehland	8-1

FIRST WAY has been in the money in all its starts and seems good enough to win here. JACK RED RAN, which has been hampered, could make bother DUSTY DAN a another threat.

SEVENTH RACE—5-16 MILE

SPECTURE, CRONY, MR. WINDOM, DICTATOR JOHN

1	Specture Crony	51	Ben Neal, Jr.	3-1

6	Sadness	58	F. Spencer	8-1
7	Lou Ann	56	Homer Bagwell	8-1
8	Two Toes	64	Paul Boone	8-1

SPECTURE CRONY'S last, where it was a fine second, was good enough to give it the edge over this field. MR. WINDOM, running in much improved form, might cause bother, with DICTATOR JOHN always a menace.

EIGHTH RACE—FUTURITY

OLDUNA LOUNA, COMRADE CARESS, LADY DIONDYL

1	Olduna Louna	62	M. J. Gavan	3-1

6	Sam Clipper	70	O. O. B. Kennel	8-1
7	Unnerved	67	W. B. Hall	8-1
8	Princess Bronze	67	G. Lippold Jr.	8-1

OLDUNA LOUNA seems perfectly spotted for the win here. COMRADE CARESS, which likes to run from the outside, is the main danger. If LADY DIONDYL repeats her last, she might upset.

NINTH RACE—5-16 MILE

SNIPPY OFFICER, DREAMY EYES, GILBEY'S GIN

1	Snippy Officer	64	F. L. Bemis	3-1

4	Lucky	59	Ben Neal, Jr.	6-1
5	Cuddle Caress	61	C. A. Rhodes	6-1
6	Bee Bark	60	H. Stephenson	8-1
7	Bright Belted	62	Tom Baird	8-1
8	Riley Andrew	64	Pat Cooney	8-1

SNIPPY OFFICER should take the lead and never stop. DREAMY EYES, moving up, may be a serious threat. GILBEY'S GIN is always heard.

TENTH RACE—5-16 MILE

PUDDLES, LITTLE GIANT, CAMERON COUNTESS

1	Puddles	69	Cedar Pt. Ken	3-1
2	Little Giant	73	J. L. Speltz	4-1
3	Cameron Lassie's Gal	63	Robert Bryant	5-1

6	Jerry Mabe	63	John Hightower	6-1
7	Rosehip Perfect	61	H. Stephenson	8-1
8	Iron Ore	59	Art Wilson	8-1

PUDDLES should take the track and never look back, with LITTLE GIANT in all probability his first contender. The red blanket should bring CAMERON COUNTESS into the money.

Huskies Crew Coach Is Master Pessimist

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 25 (AP)—Alvin Martin Ulbrickson, rowing's master pessimist and most successful coach, is sitting by the river these sultry nights telling a tale of woe fit to chill the heart of the stoutest.

There doesn't seem to be any real reason for it either. His Washington crews have swept the last two Intercollegiate Rowing Association regattas here.

The varsity lifted the Olympic championship in 1936. No crew has lost a race since 1935. He has three veterans of last year's varsity on hand and a swarm of mountainous young men to carry on.

LIKES BEARS

"Why, we're not anywhere as good as last year," sighed Al last night as his crew finished a light workout in company with the six other fleets. "Lost a lot of good men, and the fellows who replaced them aren't so big. Why, our bow and No. 2 men are only five feet 11 inches."

Would it cause Al's troubles if he turned him mind to the Golden Bears of California, currently considered the best eight on the river?

"That's a real crew," said Al, in the pleased way coaches have when they have a chance to put some one else's boat in the favorites spot.

"Yes, sir, we beat them out at Seattle but they turned around, got six new men for the boat, found a new stroke, and now that's a whale of a crew."

Reports were out that Don Hume, the Huskies stroke in the last two all-conquering crews, was not at his best.

"That's another thing that worries me," mourned Al. "He's far from his peak. He may regain it in another week but not by Monday. Certainly is tough, isn't it?"

"We have had a lot of sick nose and injuries. I wish I could have my boys all together for a while. Then we'd show you something. But gosh don't pick on Jock at California. Look at Navy, look at Cornell. All great crews. Why, even that Wisconsin—"

Crimson Oarsmen Lauded by Bolles

'One of Best Yet' He Maintains

NEW LONDON, Ct., June 25 (INS)—Jim (Spike) Chace who stroked the crew, Tom D. Bolles who coached it, and every oarsman who pulled a great Harvard varsity eight to a stirring victory over Yale, are glamorous figures in Crimson rowing history today.

Harvard advanced to the top pinnacle of eastern crew racing by a brilliant win over a courageous Ed Leader boat that made a brave bid, but failed. By a full length, Coach Bolles' "picture" crew led Yale at the exciting finish.

And thus did the eighty-year-old rivalry end in a day of uninterrupted triumph for the young coach who came out of the west to whip Yale two years in a row.

Harvard won the junior varsity and the freshman events in the morning in handy fashion, giving the Crimson a clean sweep for one of the few times in history.

The winning time didn't approachh Harvard's record-breaking pace of last year. But the comparatively slow time failed to convince Bolles that he hasn't one of the finest eights of this generation.

Tom Bolles

One of the greatest boats in my 18 years of rowing," said the jubilant leader of the Crimson. "And what a perfect stroke is Spike Chace."

There was just a thin space of open water between the two fine crews which thrilled a gay, co-ed throng that made up the richest and most spectacular marine parade in all the world.

It was Spike Chace, 6-foot 4, square of jaw and with a wise old noodle hanging from his shoulders, who made the difference in the boat race.

It was Chace who jumped Johnny Harvard to a lead at the start. It was Chase who met the threatening challenges of the desperate Blue in the middle miles.

And again it was Chace, arms, legs and body swinging like a motor in perfect tune, who killed off a bold Yale bid in the last half mile, who brought his smooth, powerful varsity home fresh and triumphant.

And when the winning shell slid gracefully to rest after the finish, the gay crowd which stretched four miles down the Thames River paid a noisy salute to Chace, to Bolles and to every Harvard oarsman and cox.

Talbot, Byers H-Y Captains

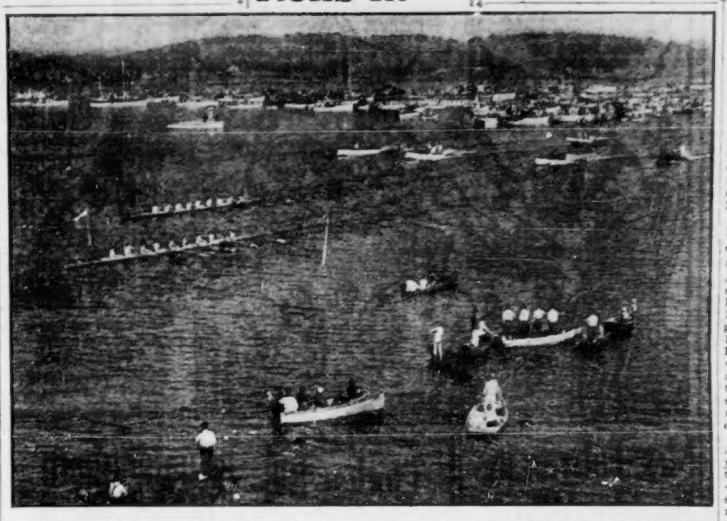
NEW LONDON, Ct., June 25 (AP)—The winning Harvard varsity crew elected Dudley Talbot, 21, of Weston, Mass., captain for next year, and Yale's oarsmen chose Buckley M. Byers of Sewickley, Pa., to the same post on their eight for 1939 at elections. Talbot rowed No. 3 on this year's triumphant eight.

Eddie Collins, Jr., To Lead Yale Nine

NEW LONDON, Ct., June 25 (AP)—Yale won its baseball series with Harvard for the fourth successive season by taking the third and deciding game of the series, 7-6, at Mercer Field before a regatta day throng of 2000.

Harvard elected Art Johns, shortstop from Medford, Mass., to captain the 1939 team after the game, while Yale chose Edward Collins, Jr., of Brookline, Mass., son of the general manager of the Boston Red Sox, as its next year's leader.

Crimson Tide Rolls In



Coach Tom Bolles' undefeated Harvard varsity crew completes sweep on Thames by defeating Yale's eight by length over four-mile route. It was the first time since 1920 that Harvard had won all three races from its rivals.

Marathon Heroes In 10-Mile Grind

Pawson, Kelley, DeMar Start

It's reunion day today for former winners of the B. A. A. marathon with several former Patriots' Day champions being included in the field of 98 to take part in the final annual 10-mile race of the Holy Name Church in West Roxbury.

Leslie Pawson of Pawtucket, R. I., the present champion; Johnny Kelley of Arlington, Ellison "Tarzan" Brown of Alton, R. I., and the great Clarence De Mar of Keene, N. H., will all be among the field to gather on the starting mark near the Roslindale railroad station at 5:30 p. m.

Leslie Pawson

Andy Zamparelli, one of New England's leading 10-mile runners, will join Pawson, Kelley and Brown on the scratch mark, and the race will mark the first time the four ever started together from the same mark at the same time to settle supremacy over the 10-mile distance.

Pompoon Starts In $20,000 'Cap

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—Pompoon, J. H. Louchheim's four-year-old which seems to thrive on tough competition, gets another taste of it today in the $20,000 Brooklyn Handicap at Aqueduct.

The son of Pompey has been asked to pick up top weight of 126 pounds and match strides over a mile and an eighth with nine high-ranking rivals, including Maxwell Howard's lightly-weighted three-year-olds, The Chief and Stagehand.

Pompoon must give 21 pounds to The Chief while Stagehand gets in with 110.

Regardless of the weight handicap, Pompoon rules the 8-to-5 choice.

Quinn Won't Rest Until Bees Win Flag

By WALTER KILEY

The Bees have one rabid booster who will never toss in the sponge, one who will never be satisfied until he's brought a pennant winner to Boston.

He's J. Robert Quinn, Bees' president, a man who has spent a lifetime in baseball and who is now, more than ever, heart and soul in making a winner of the Boston Swarm.

"I only hope the Good Lord spares me long enough for the fulfillment of my dreams," Prexy Bob remarked as the Bees awaited today's opener with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"I've been saying that I'd produce a great team for many years now, but it seems they've always eluded me.

"But we'll still do it, and I'll never rest until I've accomplished my ambition. And the day may not be so far off as so many persons think."

One pennant winner, produced here in Boston, the city he loves most dearly, would more than recompense him for all the heartaches and disappointments which have been his lot through the many years.

There are many of those who think, with President Quinn, that the rainbow will shine brightly in the near future.

The Bees' farm system would look to be paying dividends. There are several fine looking youngsters learning their fundamentals who appear to have special prowess and may fill the bill nicely in following seasons.

There are two or three fine boys playing for the Bees' Hartford team right this minute who may be stars of the future. And some of the other farms boast others. But Quinn refuses to rush them. He wants them to take their knocks in the minors before chancing the greater hazards of major league company.

John Lanning

"I've seen too many likely looking players ruined by taking them up before their time," he said. "Let them find out what it's all about first. Then if they show the goods we'll give them a chance," he says. "If we took one of these boys up now, and he fell down, his entire future might be jeopardized."

Today the Bees meet the Pirates in the first of three games. Tobacco Johnny Lanning opening, with Jim Turner and Lou Fette in tomorrow's double-header.

TOLMICH SEEKS TRIPLE

After spending their off day and their money at the race track, the Bees are glad to get back in action this afternoon at National League Field against the Pirates . . . Despite the loss of Gene Moore, Danny MacFayden and Mil Shoffner, the Bees have broken even at home . . . Although they are still carrying on, Chick Cuccinello, Johnny Cooney and "Rabbit" Warstler are in anything but the pink of condition . . . Cuccinello and Warstler are a mass of bruises, and Cooney has been handicapped by a sore ankle . . .

Lou Gehrig

Ben Chapman

Within a year or two at the most, the Metacomet Invitation four ball will be "tops" in New England . . . Get on that list immediately, for bids will be at a premium next season . . . Wouldn't it be something if Wes Ferrell, Ben Chapman, Johnny Allen and Jake Powell were members of the same club . . . Lou Gehrig receives $500 for each and every endorsement . . . Harry Connaughton, who played guard for Georgetown a few years ago, has shrunk from 260 to 185 . . . Hal Trosky ruined the Red Sox yesterday with two doubles and a single, but the brand of pitching delivered by Johnny Humphries helped the cause for the Indians . . . The Gridiron Club will be the guests of Tom Lynch at his home at 38 Endicott street, Peabody, after the annual golf tournament which will be held at Salem Country Club . . . Allan Tolmich, Wayne University track star, will try the unprecedented "triple" during the National A. A. U. championship next month in Buffalo . . . He has entered the 100 meter dash and the two hurdle events.

A's Rookie, With .358, In Big Five

By the Associated Press

Although both the current pacesetters in the big league batting races—Earl Averill of Cleveland with .384 in the American League and Ernie Lombardi of Cincinnati with .367 in the National—have been around for a long time, there are rookies and second or third-year men in both loops who are right up there giving the vets a fight.

In the American League, swingin' Sammy Chapman, fresh up with the Athletics from college, and George Washington Case of Washington's Senators are fourth and fifth in the hitting parade with averages of .358 and .348 for the season.

STEINBACHER CLIMBS

Case went on a batting spree during the past week to pull himself from 12th place in the league. Another freshman, Hank Steinbacher of the Chicago White Sox, snapped out of his slump and regained the top-ten this week, winding up in seventh place with .340.

Over in the National League, Herschel Martin, Phillies' sophomore outfielder, is giving the "second-year jinx" a terrific pasting. He collected ten hits in his last 20 chances to climb into second place with a .358 average.

GARMS AT .317

In addition, the senior circuit boasts such other clouting youngsters as Buck McCormick, Reds' rookie first sacker, fourth in the league with .336; his teammate, Ival Goodman, who has only been around three years, seventh with .326, and Debs Garms of the Boston Bees, tied for eighth with .317.

Season records of the first ten in each league:

Mrs. Fabyan in Doubles Win

WIMBLEDON, June 25 (INS)—Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston and Alice Marble of California advanced to the fourth round of the British women's doubles championships today without opposition when an injury to Mrs. M. R. King forced her and her partner, Miss Pittman, to default.

In a third round singles match Peggy Scriven, one of Great Britain's ranking stars, had little trouble eliminating Miss M. R. Coquerque or Holland, 6—2, 6—3.

The fourth round of the men's singles developed some tremendous battles. F. Cejnar of Czechoslovakia staged a long-drawn-out battle to eliminate Kho Sin Kie, the diminutive Chinese, 7—5, 3—6, 3—6, 6—1, 6—3.

Another Czech, Ladislaus Hecht, had his hands full beating Franz Kukuljevic of Jugoslavia, 6—4, 3—6, 6—3, 6—4, but Henn Henkel, the German star, won handily from B. Maneff of Switzerland, 6—3, 6—2, 6—1.

WOMEN'S SINGLES

Margaret Scriven, England, defeated Mme. Rollin Couquerque, the Netherlands, 6—2, 6—3.

WOMEN'S DOUBLES

Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, Brookline, Mass., and Alice Marble, San Francisco, won by default from Mrs. Phyllis Mudford King and Mrs. Joan B. Pittman, England.

Max Schmeling Greatly Improved

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—Max Schmeling is so far along the road to recovery from the back injury he suffered in his bout with Joe Louis Wednesday night that no more official bulletins will be issued by Polyclinic Hospital, Superintendent A. A. Jaller announced today.

Louis Rides

In Horse Show

DETROIT, June 25 (INS) — A scant four days after he successfully defended his world's heavyweight championship, Joe Louis will again enter a ring in search of a new title.

But it won't be as the lethal, pulverizing puncher that Joe will compete. He will remove the leather gloves to grasp a riding crop, and instead of silk trunks he will don riding breeches.

Joe Louis, country squire, even to checked riding coat and Ascot tie, will compete in the first annual Utica Riding Club Horse Show for the colored elite of the Midwest Sunday afternoon.

Race Body Guest At Revere Oval

More than 50 members of the National Association of Racing Commissioners from all parts of the United States occupied box seats at Wonderland, Revere, and witnessed more than half of the 10-race program. The visitors, now in convention in Boston, were guests of Adnah Neyhart, managing director of the race track. Massachusetts Commission Chairman Charles H. Connors escorted the commissioners to Wonderland.

Included in the party were A. S. Hewitt of Virginia, Joseph R. Stein of Florida, Frank J. Rogers of Florida, Samuel Hillburn of Florida, George H. Foster of Illinois, Thomas B. Underwood of Kentucky, James F. Haywood of Maryland, Ralph George of New Hampshire, Irving Hinkley of New Hampshire.

Cunningham In Met. Meet

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—A field of 300 competitors, including such noted campaigners as Glenn Cunningham, Howie Borck, Jim Herbert, Ben Johnson, Howard Brill and Francis Ryan, compete in the senior track and field championships of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U. today at Yonkers, N. Y.

Cunningham, one of 18 defending champions on the 21-event program, will seek to repeat his 1937 victory in the mile, when he set a meet record of 4:14.1, and also is entered in the 880.

In the former race he will meet Borck the I. C. 4-A champion and record holder; Lou Burns, Edgar Stripling and Leslie MacMitchell, former schoolboy ace.

Borck, Stripling and Burns, as well as Herbert, are entered in the half-mile.

Herbert also is entered in the 440 as defending champion; Johnson will face strong fields in both sprints, and Ryan and Brill, the I. C. 4-A champion, top the entry in the shot put.

Anny Denies

Retirement Report

BERLIN, June 25 (INS)—Reports that she had persuaded Max Schmeling to retire from the ring as a result of his defeat by Joe Louis were scouted today by the German fighter's wife, Anny Ondra, motion picture actress.

"Naturally," she told International News Service, "I should like Max to retire. But neither of us have mentioned the matter in our conversations over the trans-Atlantic telephone. I have never interfered in boxing matters, and I never intend to."

My Buddy Aces With Wilson

By DAVE WILSON
(Selections for fast track)
BEST BET—MY BUDDY, 2D

My Buddy, a recent second behind Miss Hollywood, appears to have today's second race at Suffolk Downs.

The capable Vincent Nodarse is scheduled to ride, and this combination should be unbeatable, with a fair break from the starting gate.

FIRST RACE
Forced Landing, Wantarun, Viajero

FORCED LANDING on recent good form is the best of this poor lot. WANTARUN showed a nice effort the other day and looms as the logical contender. VIAJERO for the remainder.

SECOND RACE
My Buddy, Dinna Do, Fillup

DINNA DO is rounding to form and may upset if MY BUDDY fails. FILLUP for what is left.

THIRD RACE
Salian, Nellie Mc, Story Time

SALIAN and Jockey Donoso need only a fast track to prove the winning combination here. NELLIE MC. is always trying and gets a good rating. STORY TIME figures close up.

FOURTH RACE
Owaller, Crowning Glory, Hat Check

Speedy OWALLER is placed nicely in this heat and should lead from flag fall to finish. CROWNING GLORY is a consistent performer and has a fighting chance.

HAT CHECK should save the show award.

FIFTH RACE
Mothel, Last Romance, Blue King.

MOTHEL rates best in this marathon affair. LAST ROMANCE also likes the route and is a strong contender. BLUE KING holds an edge over the others.

SIXTH RACE
O Bantam, Midshipman, Ladfield.

O BANTAM needs only to run back to his last race to carry off the major honors in this race. MIDSHIPMAN, a recent winner, flashed good form and should hold the speedy LADFIELD safe for the place slot.

SEVENTH RACE
Playdema, Mill Pond, Beveau

PLAYDEMA, badly interferred with in a recent effort, gets a sky ful of figures over this field. MILL POND has shown steady improvement and should edge Beveau for second place. BEVEAU won the last time out and can't be overlooked.

EIGHTH RACE
Synod, Brass Monkey, Tiempo

SYNOD needs only a snug ride from Yarberry to win the nightcap heat. The veteran BRASS MONKEY will like the fast strip and long route. TIEMPO won at this distance and is not out of it.

Robert Taylor Makes Hit With Gotham Scribes

Movie Star Backs Proposition for Title Bout on Coast

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP)—Suspicious sports writers began to smell the well-known rat when Robert Taylor, the movie star, was spotted in a delegation of Californians trying to talk Mike Jacobs into staging a heavyweight championship fight in San Francisco next year.

Particularly since Taylor's next picture will be built around a fight story . . . the westerners are taking it seriously and guaranteed Mike a million potatoes to stage the show . . . Mike told 'em to rake up the dough and then come back . . . six months ago, Mike said: "From now on, all my important shows will be held in New York."

Taylor, by the way, made a big hit with the hard-boiled New York boxing writers, who can spot a phoney a block away . . . He may be beautiful to the gals, but to the scribes he is just a well set-up, extremely personable young man who knows his boxing and boxers.

WADE RATES NEAR TOP

Unusual stories: The Yankees (who own Newark) selling a ball player (Bob Seeds) to the hated Giants . . . Chicago sports writers say Windy City fans have about given up on the Cubs this year.

In 19 years of coaching, Wallace Wade of Duke, one of the best coaches in the country, has won only two games by the margin of extra points . . . Incidentally, both were by scores of 20-19.

ST. DENIS MISSED FIGHT

The uniform Babe Ruth uses to coach the Dodgers had to be made to order . . . Note to Tampa sports writers: The reason Frank Winchell is not back from the fight is because N. Y. baseball writers won't let him leave.

Norman St. Denis, who publicized the Ross-Armstrong and Louis-Schmeling fight for Mike Jacobs, didn't get to see either because of poor train connections.

Word from the coast says Francis Albertanti, the best sports press agent Broadway has known in years, is in Hollywood to stay . . . Col. Ruppert is beginning to worry a whole lot about the way the Yanks are going.

Early arrivals at Ebbets Field these days are getting a great kick out of watching Babe Ruth slug that baseball . . . He's fat and forty-odd but still can do tricks with that war club . . . He's lost at least two balls with drives over the palings every day since he joined the club.

'Bomb Italy Towns' Spain's New Threat

PARIS, June 25 (AP)—Farflung aerial reprisals, including bombardment of "Italian-dominated" towns in the Balearic Islands, have been threatened by the Spanish government unless Generalissimo Franco quits bombing civilian centers behind Spain's battlelines.

Despite urgent British and French admonitions against "rash" acts, the Spanish embassy in Paris insisted today that retaliation would be taken into consideration unless the insurgent chieftain abstains from that type of warfare.

The embassy said that since Franco's raiders operate largely from the Spanish Balearic islands, the reprisal raids certainly would be directed against "Italian dominated towns there."

HINT NAZI BOMBING

The embassy itself did not elaborate on or confirm a previous implication that the government might carry aerial warfare to German or Italian cities or other non-Spanish objectives.

Sources close to the French office, however, said the Barcelona government had threatened to bomb cities of "those foreign countries" which share responsibility for insurgent bombardment of Spanish civilian centers.

Barcelona authorities insist that both Italian and German planes and fliers participated in repeated raids on Spanish coastal cities and towns.

SEES WAR PERIL

Informed quarters said the French appeal to Barcelona was made in "energetic" terms and included a warning that such raids were sure to bring "a mass reply which would add materially to the difficulties of the Spanish republic and have dangerous repercussions in the whole international situation."

Barcelona's envoy to Paris was

Stocks Hesitate, Then Rise Again

NEW YORK, June 25 (AP) — Stocks dipped at the start of today's market, but pivotal issues, led by steels and motors, came back quickly following a statement by the U. S. Steel Corp., that no assurances had been given wage reductions would not follow the slash in steel prices announced yesterday.

Thousands thronged New England beaches today as a blistering sun prolonged an eight-day heat wave which has seen the mercury at 80 degrees or above daily.

The thermometer climbed quickly during mid-morning and at 11 a. m. stood at 86. It was likely to pass the high of 94 set on the day the present spell began, the weather man said.

Although partly cloudy weather and possible showers were predicted for tonight or tomorrow, the weatherman offered little hope of relief until after the week-end.

The exodus to the beaches began early, with a favoring early high tide and prospects of a half-holiday.

Both Revere and Nantasket reported huge bathing throngs while other North and South Shore resorts were similarly crowded.
